CHINESE GIRL TENNIS STAR WINS TITLE

13-YEAR-OLD MISS HOAHING.

DROPS THREE GAMES IN LAST
TWO ROUNDS

London, Yesterday.

Thirteen-year-old Miss Gem Hoahing, the now well-known Chinese competitor, showed exceptional promise when winning the Queen's Club "under 16" lawn tennis championship to-day.

Miss Hoahing dropped only three games in the course of the semi-final and final round.—Reuter.

The Chinese prodigy is a member of the West Twickenham Club and, for her age, plays a remarkably advanced game. Her forehand is well executed, carries plenty of pace, and is unusually well directed with good length to the backhand corner. The execution of her backhand stroke reminds one of the free swing of Miss Dorothy Round, the new Wimbledon champion.

Miss Hoahing, who can hold her own with senior members of her Club, won the girls' singles title at Sandown last year and reached the final of the New Malden tournament last year.

She has a grass court at her disposal at her parents' Georgian house at Kew, possesses robust physique, and receives every encouragement.

Toronto, Yesterday.
Tommy Armour, 1931 British Open champion, is leading the field with an aggregate of 142 in the Second Round of the Canadian Open Golf Championship, held by Joe Kirkwood, Australian trick golfer now residing in America.

To-morrow 63 will play over the final 36 holes.

Jack Littler was placed third as the result of a perfect 69 which gave him a 146 total. His excellent round was chiefly due to his superb putting.

Leo Diegel, who was leading in the First Round, cracked up badly to take 82 for an aggregate of 147. He drove prodigiously, but wretched putting discounted any advantage gained.

600 ATHLETES FROM DOMINIONS

ALLEGIANCE TO KING SWORN BY ENTRANTS

50,000 PIGEONS RELEASED AS MEETING DECLARED OPEN

ENGLISH CAPTAIN'S ACT

London, Yesterday.

Twenty years ago today the Dominions gathered in the Mother Country swearing loyalty in time of war. To-day, 600 athletes from 16 Dominions collected in England in friendly rivalry and swore allegiance to the King-Emperor in the name of sport at the opening of the Empire games.

An impressive ceremony was presented when the athletes, wearing the coloured uniforms of their respective countries, passed the Union Jack bedecked rostrum on which stood the Lord Mayor of London, Sir Charles Collett, and Lord Lonsdale, who inaugurated the festival Empire meeting at the Crystal Palace in the Coronation year, 1911, and who is now President of the games.

The teams marched alphabetically, but Canada, who were hosts in 1930 were first, and England last.

THE LORD MAYOR DECLARED THE GAMES OPEN AS THE UNION JACK WAS HOISTED TO THE ACCOMPANIMENT OF A FANFARE OF TRUMPETS. SIMULTANEOUSLY, 50,000 PIGEONS, VALUED AT £200,000, WERE RELEASED AND WHIRLED IN A GREAT CLOUD ABOVE THE WHITE CITY STADIUM.

The oath was then sworn Howland England's captain, with a flag, in his left hand and his right arm raised, on behalf of all the athletes took the oath which was amplified by loud speakers.

The scene shifted this evening to Wembley Stadium where the opening ceremony at 7 p.m. precedes the swimming events.—Reuter.

Reuter's had not cabled a single result by 4 a.m. this morning.

COTTON SPINNERS' AGITATION.

Rise In Silver Want
Now Spreading.

London, Yesterday.

The agitation of the master Cotton Spinners' Federations for a rise in silver is now being considered by other textile organisations.

The Federation stated that although only a short time has elapsed they have received a most satisfactory response with a definite assurance of full active support.—Reuter.

BAKER AND BORAH

SENATOR SLATES
N.R.A. MOVE

ROBBING THE POOR.

Glensferry, Idaho, Yesterday.

Senator Borah yesterday took a strong line against the N.R.A. order raising the price of bread. A local baker complained to Senator Borah that he had been ordered to increase the price by a cent a loaf.

Senator Borah promised to provide the baker with counsel if he was prosecuted for defying the order, declaring that it meant taking vast sums in pennies from the homes of the poor.

As a result of Senator Borah's promise, the price immediately fell one cent per loaf.—Reuter.

AMERICAN EXPORTS TO SOVIET

Johnson Law Produces
Very Small Increase.

Washington, Yesterday.

The United States Department of Commerce reports that exports to the Soviet for the first six months of this year were valued at U.S. $6,117,000, as compared with U.S. $2,429,000 for the corresponding period of last year, and U.S. $7,981,000 for the corresponding period of 1930.

Soviet officials state that the smallness of the increase is due to the Johnson Law withholding credits from Russia as a default.—United Press per S. E. Levy and Company.

PROVINCIAL REVENUE AND EXPENDITURE.

Surplus Shown.

Canton, Yesterday.

According to the official report of the Provincial Department of Finance, the national and provincial revenues and expenditures for June were as follows:

National Revenue $5,535,856.05;
National Expenditure, $5,020,543.49.

Provincial Revenue $6,405,820.34;
Provincial Expenditure, $4,323,454.74.—Central Press.

DISQUIETING RUMOUR

(From Our Own Correspondent)

CANTON, YESTERDAY.

AFTER DEFEATING THE CRACK NANKING TROOPS AT TAI TIEN AND YUNG AN IN WESTERN FUKIEN, THE COMMUNIST FORCES, ACCORDING TO INDEPENDENT REPORTS FROM AMOY, ARE SAID TO BE PUSHING EASTWARD IN AN EFFORT TO CAPTURE FOOCHOW, PROVINCIAL CAPITAL OF FUKIEN, WHICH HAS PROCLAIMED EMERGENCY MEASURES TO COPE WITH THE SITUATION.

An unconfirmed report stated that the Reds have captured Shuihow (Water Mouth), a strategic town 50 miles above Foochow. Yen Ping and Shulow are Foochow's two last posts of defence.

H.M.S. Witch is now at Mamoi, the mouth of the Min River, about 15 miles from Foochow. The U.S. gunboat Sacramento is due to-day at Mamoi from Shanghai, while a Japanese light cruiser, Kumari, arrived there yesterday.

An alarming aspect of the situation is that the Reds are reported to be trying to capture Foochow with a view to molesting the foreigners in Chong Chiu Shan, the suburb where the Consulates, foreign firms, residential quarters, and missionary buildings are located.

Another report, which seems more reliable, states the Communists are more eager to get arms, food, and salt from the places they capture.

Although press reports issued by the publicity department of the Central Kuomintang headquarters in Nanking stated that the government troops are defeating the Communists on all fronts, General Chen Yi, Chairman of the Fukien Provincial Government, is said to be aware of the retreat of the Nanking troops, and has declared martial law at Foochow.

LAST RESTING PLACE
COMPLICATIONS

Berlin, Yesterday.

An astonishing story that the late President von Hindenburg's will cannot be found is circulating in Berlin. It is stated that Dr. Meissner, President von Hindenburg's State Secretary, has unsuccessfully searched the President's Berlin Palace while there is no trace of the will at Nendek Castle.

It is suggested that the absence of the will is contributing to the lack of definite decision as regards the final resting place for the President.—Reuter.

"NEW DEAL" AT CROSSROADS.

NEEDS NEW IMPETUS

Washington, Yesterday.

With many important problems awaiting solution, and the Congressional elections drawing near, the country is interestedly awaiting the several speeches which President Roosevelt will make on his journey from Portland, Oregon, to Washington.

President Roosevelt, who was welcomed on landing at Portland, at the end of his vacation, by his wife, the Treasury Secretary, Mr. Henry Morgenthau, and the Secretary of Interior, Mr. Harold I. Ickes, will make a short tour of the north-west, including an inspection of the great dam at Conneville, which is in the course of erection.

Later, he will join a special train, accompanied by several Cabinet ministers and leading Congressmen, en route to Washington.

The President returns to face a situation likely to test his powers to the utmost.

With the increased plight of the farmers, owing to the drought, and the sluggishness with which the housing programme has got going, economic recovery has lagged considerably during his holiday. (Continued on Page 15.)

TYPHOON WARNING

Danger To Hong Kong
Not Imminent.

A typhoon is reported by the Royal Observatory to be situated about 1,200 miles to the east-south-east of Hong Kong, moving westward. Pressure is highest over the eastern sea, while the northern depression is moving into the Pacific to the north-east of Hokkaido. The depression over Tongking is stationary.

Moving on its present course the above-mentioned typhoon will miss Hong Kong by a considerable distance to the south.

WEATHER FORECAST

Fair, with local showers, and moderate south-east winds, was the weather forecast for to-day, as issued by the Royal Observatory last night.

BEAUTY TIME CHARTS

SYSTEMS DESIGNED FOR MODERN NEEDS.

FOR BUSY WOMEN

London.
FEW women during the London season care to embark on any course of beauty treatment without knowing exactly how much time they will need to put aside for it. Consequently more than one specialist has prepared time charts for daily or weekly beauty culture at home, and has by experiment and practice reduced salon treatments to the minimum time for the convenience of busy women.

A specialist who has a daily four-lotion treatment, especially intended for the summer season, has timed each of the "steps" in the procedure. Women with sensitive, dry skins or the older clients must allot twelve minutes to whose skins need extra nourishment their daily skin care.

Planning The Minutes

Skins that are greasy, or the "debutante" skin, can save three minutes because they do not need in the morning the application of a liquid skin food. Two minutes is allowed for a purifying and disinfectant lotion, four minutes for an astringent cleanser, three minutes for a foundation lotion, with three minutes for the skin food before the lotion when necessary. "Cleanse, stimulate and tone" is the slogan of another specialist for what she calls her busy, impatient or lazy clients. Three-minute treatments daily she has devised for them, according to their type, dry skin, normal, or oily skin.

In each case the total cost of the three preparations needed is given, and clients are warned in their own interests to use but a little of each at a time, as they are all highly concentrated. Both normal and greasy skins are cleansed in this treatment with a cream that has been pasteurised and which is the formula of a Viennese-chemist, once used for children.

CHOICE OF HATS

BRIM LINE STYLE

WHETHER the fashionable woman boasts a rickshaw for her private use or a motor car is likely to influence her choice of hat. At the moment, those adaptations of the "sailor hat" which add smartness to the summer ensemble abound amongst office workers who effect the chic.

For tea-ing at garden party or country club, the large hat, modelled on the "picture hat" style, is university popular. The clever brim lines are responsible for that air of style to important.

SUMMER DRESSES

Striped Suit Ideal Over White Dresses.

IN midsummer, after the urge for pale pastels and bright prints has been satisfied, it is difficult to find something entirely new and exciting that is not too dark to go well against the summer landscape.

And yet, these checks and stripes seem to fill the order perfectly. They are easy to wear, fit themselves into any wardrobe, and are appropriate for every summer occasion that is not actually formal.

Matching Bags And Hats.

MATCHING bags and hats are featured again and again, one being of deep pansy purple velvet, to go with a wide brimmed velvet hat, completing a mid-length pansy floral printed crepe frock.

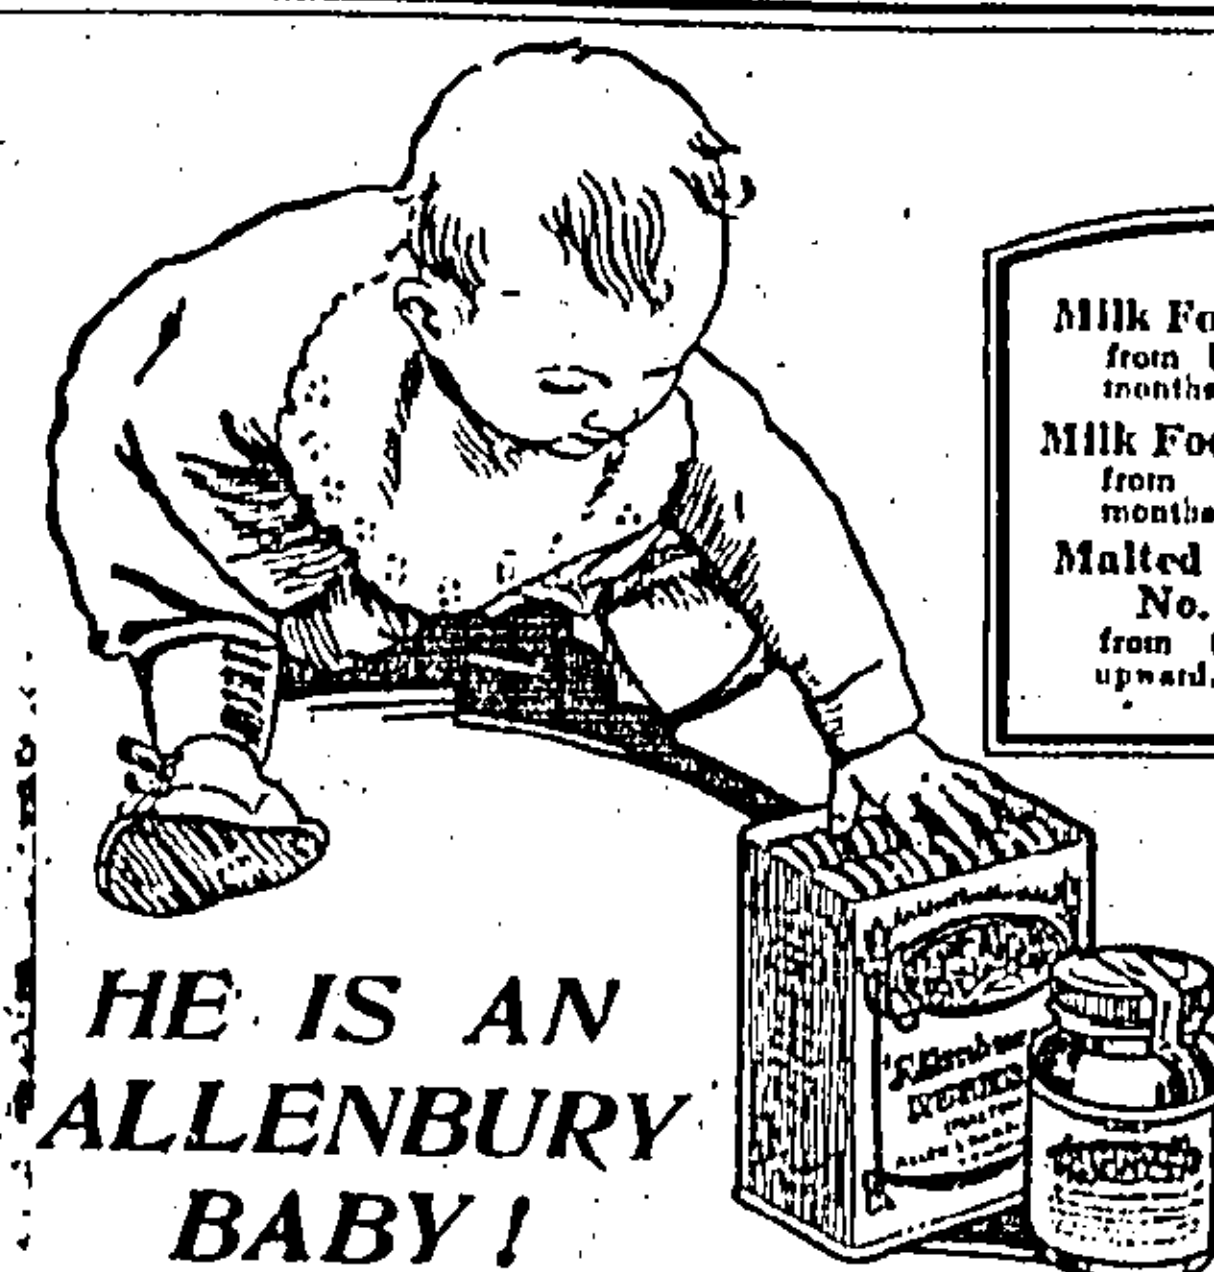

Pearls are being revived for wear in three strings posed one above the other at the base of the neck when high front neck-line are not observed. Almost all gowns of the long variety are high necked, however, with covered backs or short pointed open ones.

GADGETS FOR THE TOILET TABLE

PARIS is offering many new gadgets for the toilet table. There are the new atomizers in rectangular shape, with gleaming silver rectangular shaped tops. Coloured crystal gaily decorated with a vivid contrasting shade are used for powder boxes, and atomizers. The flat powder jar is a favourite one for the dressing table, as it is so convenient. It is, however, the contents, as well as the container, that decide the real beauty of the toilette table.

Cravat Silks.

CRAVAT silks are having quite a play among the accessories for women's suits and that the stiffer silks have been used is especially praiseworthy, since it strikes a happy medium between the bouffant and too flat look.

EASING THE SEVERITY OF FEATURES

THE brim sponsorer maintains that "one must have ever so slight a brim on the smartest hat because it serves as a sort of frame for the face, eases the severity of the features, or, if the features are not sufficiently severe, it emphasizes them correctly by means of shadows cast by the brim."

Luncheon Frocks.

THE girl who goes to luncheons during the hot months will choose silk and cotton frocks that are printed with chic, cool-looking nautical figurines. And she'll top at least one of them with a pert blue jacket that is patterned after an ensign's own double-breasted coat.

Ammonia Versus Prickly Heat

EMERALD GREEN FELT HAT

With Green Felt Bag To Match.

London.
ALTHOUGH straws are very much in evidence, the latest cult seems to be for hats of organdie, light felt or velvet. A ground length frock seen at a recent smart function was in pure work machine-stitched through white organdie with flat trelis skirt, corsage, and bell-sleeved elbow sleeves.

It was worn with a very wide emerald green felt hat, trellised through the wide brim in the same flat close-up manner, with a velvet blind round the crown to match a narrow green velvet ribbon belt, which trailed off into long ends from a bow at the back. A surprise came in a green felt bag.

CLEANING THE BED LAMP

TO clean one of the georgette bed lamp shades, just shake it up and down in a pan of warm water to which has been added enough mild soap chips to make a good suds. Rinse in lukewarm water. It will look like new.

THE ANTIDOTE FOR INSECT BITES.

ALTHOUGH cloudy ammonia has for many years been in use in English households as a cleanser, it is only recently that the manifold uses of this versatile liquid have been fully appreciated in the tropics.

As a cure for prickly heat it is extremely efficacious. A tablespoonful or two in a bath has a wonderful tonic effect on the skin and quickly combats the effects of excessive perspiration. It is also extremely refreshing, and renders the water beautifully soft. Soap lathers twice as easily in water to which cloudy ammonia has been added.

Cloudy ammonia is also an excellent antidote for insect bites. It quickly diminishes irritation and inflammation, and is pleasantly cooling when applied.

Scrub's, the original full strength cloudy ammonia, is now universally obtainable and is quite inexpensive.

PASTEL RUBBER FOR SWIMMING

New York.
FABRICS that reach a new high this summer are pastel rubber, plaid taffeta, checked gingham and seersucker, knitted silk, striped and plain linen, lacy knit wool and fine jersey.

Shorts and baby pants with halters, plain trunks with brassiere tops and the ubiquitous one-piece suits with or without skirts are the best-selling designs. This is a year when a girl can get a bathing costume that not only flatters her figure but suits her individuality as well.

Roza Pereira Breaks Own Bath Record. Magnificent Effort Over 440 Yards

COLONY DIVING CHAMPION LOSES FIRST PLACE

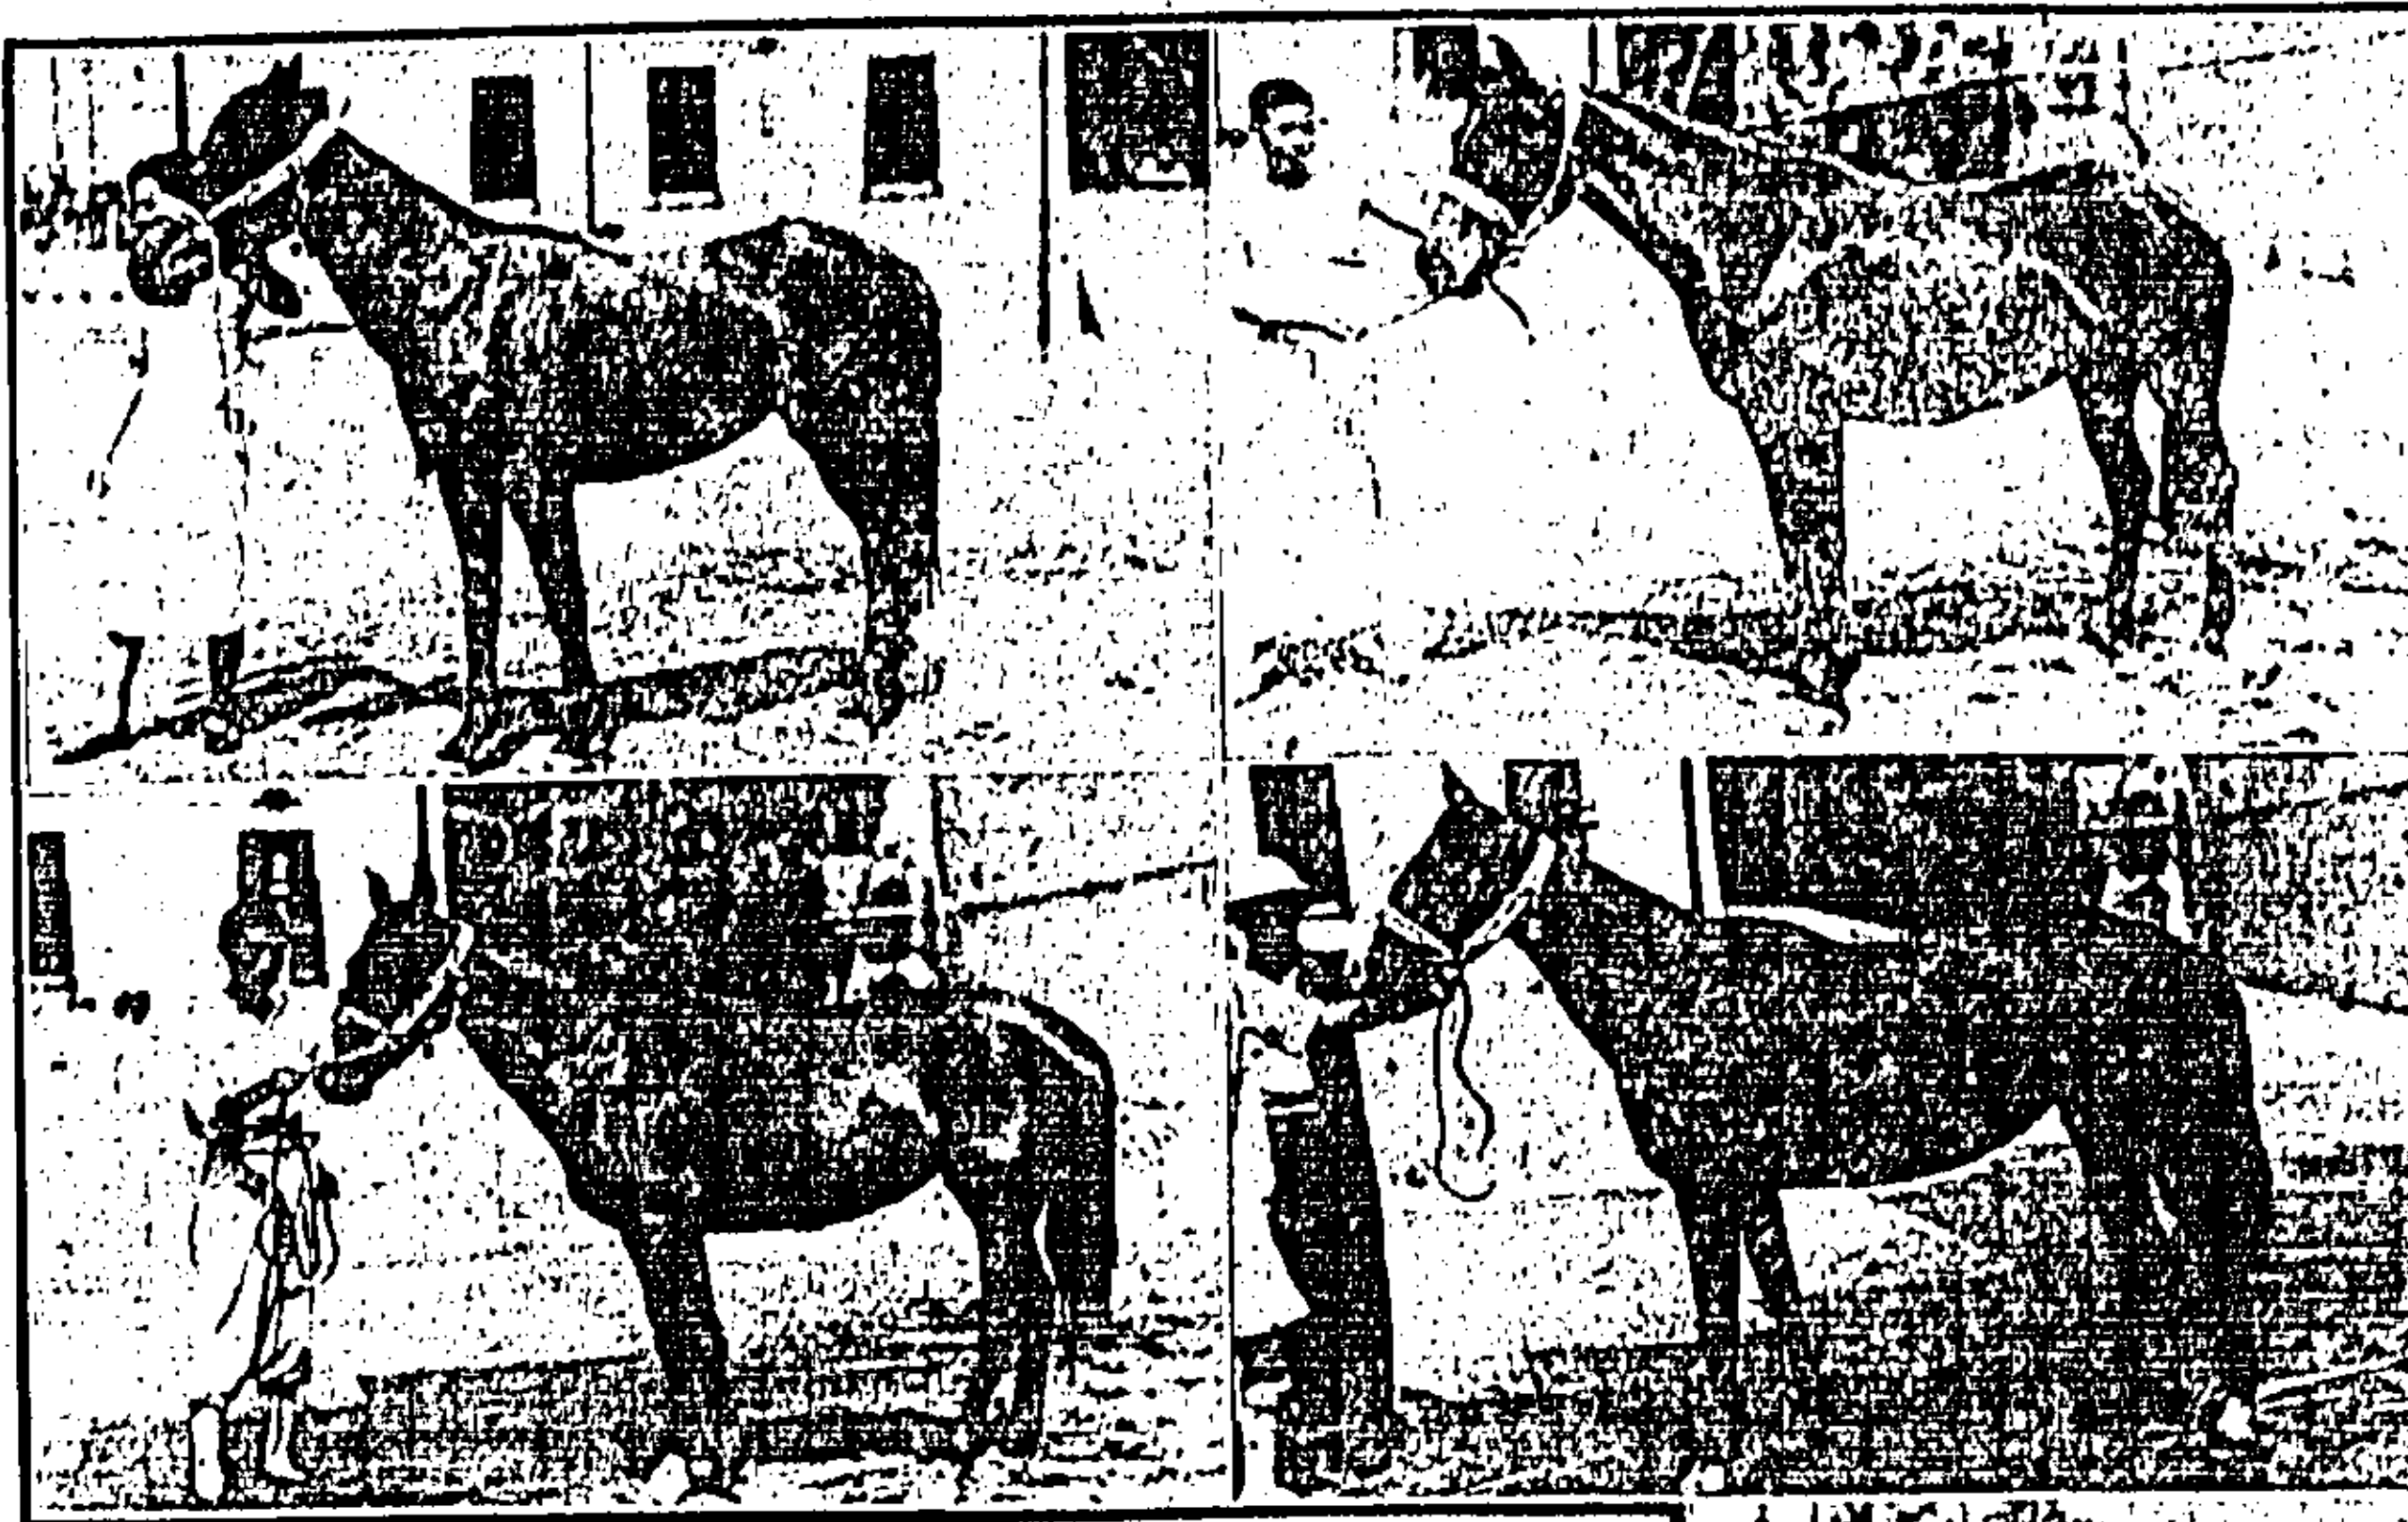

LIONEL Roza-Pereira, the Colony's champion long distance swimmer, beat A. A. da Rosa in the 440 yards handicap free style race, when starting from scratch, to clip 2.4.5 secs. off his own bath record for this distance at the V.R.C. gala last night. Roza-Pereira won by a touch in 5 mins. 41 secs.

Lionel Roza-Pereira was responsible for two other triumphs. He won the "A" class members' 150 yards medley race from T. L. Paget with an amazing burst of speed over the last 25 yards of the bath, following his win in the quarter mile event. After this he competed in the sealed handicap diving event to win with 90 points from Edward Roza, the Colony's diving champion.

Conceding 80 seconds to the limit man, L. Osmund, and 12 seconds to both W. T. Campbell and A. A. Roza, Lionel Roza-Pereira was faced with a very difficult proposition. A. A. Roza shot off at a terrific pace to lead Campbell by four lengths, maintaining his lead throughout. Swimming strongly, Lionel finally overhauled Campbell on the 7th length, and reduced Roza's lead to about half a length.

Campbell fought gamely, but the pace was too much for him and he dropped back a little in the next few lengths.

On the 10th length Lionel drew

FIVE PONIES SELECTED AT RANDOM FROM THE BATCH OF 42 NEW AUSTRALIANS WHICH ARRIVED FOR THE 1935 RACING SEASON ON BOARD THE S.S. TANDA YESTERDAY MORNING. THE PONIES, WHEN LANDED AT TAIKOO DOCKS, DID NOT APPEAR AS PROMISING AS THE BATCH WHICH SHATTERED ALL AUSTRALIAN RECORDS IN THE COLONY DURING THE FIRST HALF OF THIS SEASON. ALTHOUGH JUDGMENT WAS DIFFICULT CONSIDERING THEIR LONG AND CRAMPED JOURNEY.

TENNIS STARS FOR MELBOURNE.

Feature Centenary Celebrations.

The world's lawn tennis champions will be seen in action in Melbourne during the Centenary Australian Championships from January 3 to 12, 1935.

The national tennis associations of Great Britain, United States of America, Japan, South Africa and New Zealand have already accepted the invitation of the Lawn Tennis Association of Australia to send their two best available players, while France has also received a similar invitation.

Germany, Spain, Italy and Czechoslovakia have been invited to send one representative each, and it is confidently anticipated that they will accept.

Besides the Australian Championships in Melbourne, the visiting players will be seen in action in exhibition matches in the other capital cities and in the New South Wales championships.

CANADIAN OPEN GOLF TOURNAMENT

Gene Sarazen and Walter Hagen, winners of the British and American Open titles in their day, are a long way behind the leaders, and only sensational play will see either win the trophy. Hagen was the 1931 holder.

The weather was sunny, although a strong wind proved a handicap to the players.

"Wild Bill" Melhorn returned a card of 73, but his 72 in the first round gave him 145 to take second place.

CUP UNEARTHED

The secretary of the Royal Canadian Golf Association recently wrote a letter to Joe Kirkwood, requesting that he return the Canadian open golf championship cup he won last year so it could be placed on exhibition during this year's tournament.

Kirkwood wrote back that he would be delighted but he did not have the cup and had not seen it since he won it. A hurried investigation was begun. The cup was found gathering dust in a customs house at Black Rock, N.Y., where it was sidetracked while en route to the winner.

AUSTRALIAN 1935 PONIES UNIMPRESSIVE

Chestnuts Show Best All-Round Promise.

CONSIGNMENT ARRIVES WITHOUT LOSS

At first sight, the new batch of 42 Australian ponies, which arrived for the 1935 racing season by the s.s. Tanda yesterday morning, were not very impressive, although, after a trying voyage and being rough-clipped they possibly were not looking at their best.

They appeared very subdued when walked ashore, a slight prance over the uneven boards of the gang-way being practically the only display of mettle noticed, although, when walking along Shaukiwan Road on their way to Happy Valley some of them were quite frisky when tram-cars passed.

There were one or two very handsome ponies amongst them, particularly a dark bay mare, with two white offside socks. She walked very nicely once she left the gangway, and looked quite promising.

Promising Chestnut

A large number of the 42 are chestnuts, and, if anything, they show a better average promise than the bays, one little gelding with a shaggy mane looked very active, and walked with a light, elastic step.

They had a fairly good trip up, until Manila, but the passage across the China sea was on the rough side. There were, however, no casualties, the full complement arriving intact, though one chestnut was rather swollen and lame in the rear near-side fetlock.

Taking them all round, they are perhaps not up to the standard of the 1934 batch, but likely to promise some quite good sport at the Valley next year.

They will be measured and inspected next Tuesday, and will be drawn for on Monday, August 13.

RIFLE CLUB HOLD SHOOT

Todd Leads Monthly Competition.

H. W. G. Todd, scoring 85 points out of a possible 105, is leading the "D" Class monthly competition of the Hong Kong Rifle Club, as the result of yesterday's shoot at the Kowloon Tong range. Though another party will be shooting this morning, he is in a very good position to secure first place.

At 200 yards range he scored five bulls-eyes—out of a possible seven, his total score for this range being 33 points. He scored another three bulls-eyes on the 500 yards range.

CRAIGENGOWER C.C. WHIST DRIVE.

Four Members Win Duck Eggs.

A very successful whist drive, at which Miss G. Marchant and Mr. T. Jones won the first prizes, was held at the Craiengower Cricket Club last night.

Mr. R. Rose secured the second prize for ladies and Mr. J. English was the second gentleman.

The prizes for the lowest scores were won by Mrs. R. Sousa and Mr. G. Gargett.

Four members of the Club, Messrs. Way, Randle, Anderson and Flynn, scored nothing, and, at the close of play were presented with a duck egg each.

There were altogether 15 tables in play.

S.W.B. LADIES' CLUB WHIST DRIVE.

Mrs. Evans and Mr. Thomas Prove Winners.

Mrs. J. Evans led Mrs. W. Bromley by 146 points to 143 points in the South Wales Borderers' Ladies' Club Whist Drive and Tombola at Murray Barracks last night. Securing 131 points Mrs. E. Jordan won the consolation prize.

In the men's section, Mr. E. Thomas secured first prize with 153 points, while Mr. J. Watts won second prize 146 points. Mr. W. Danton was awarded the consolation prize.

Correct Frame Size For Cycling Comfort

One of the most common mistakes made by the newcomer to cycling is to purchase a machine which is far too large and far too heavy. This type of machine, commonly called a "roadster," is rapidly falling from favour with keen wheelmen but, in spite of this, many cling to the ways of 20 years ago, and consider it undignified to ride a machine which appears perhaps a little unconventional.

For the utmost comfort in riding the cyclist should just be able to revolve the pedals with his heels. It is of course, understood that the ball of the foot is the correct part to use when riding. This position of the pedals enables the cyclist to obtain the utmost purchase, while allowing sufficient scope for "ankling," which is the most important feature of neat riding.

A frame which is too large to allow this type of pedalling will make cycling a burden, and detract from the pleasures of the roads. A frame, however small, even down to 20 inches, can be adjusted to the average rider by merely elongating the saddle pin.

The ideal for a man from 5 feet 8 inches upwards is 22 inches, which is now becoming almost universally used by Club members in England. A good maxim to follow when buying a cycle is to deduct 10 inches from the inside leg measurement, and use that figure when deciding the frame size.

The saddle should not be placed too far back, for, although advantageous when hill climbing, it is unsuitable for ordinary road riding. The peak should be about 2 inches behind the bottom bracket, and, if sprint racing is desired, it should be placed slightly forward.

Parents, particularly, are warned not to buy a large machine for their children on the plea that it will do for them when they grow up. A lasting injury may be caused through this thoughtlessness.

SURREY PUT SPOKE IN SOUTHERN WHEEL

BATTLE OF ROSES MAY HELP MATTERS

TEST CRICKETERS SHINE

London, Yesterday.

BEATEN for the first time in 23 matches this season, Sussex bowed to Surrey, southern rivals, at the Oval yesterday. As has been the case since Middlesex brought the championship south in 1921 the southern hope of the season has always received the most serious setbacks at the hands of southern neighbours.

Sussex are now only 20 points ahead of Lancashire, and they have played one more game. Lancashire are engaged against Yorkshire to-day at Old Trafford, where a draw seems inevitable, while Sussex may consolidate their position at the head of the table with a win over Middlesex at Hove.

Mitchell enhanced his reputation as a slow bowler by dismissing the champions for 187, while Wally Hammond, another England Test player, showed encouraging form by scoring 61 out of 184 against the Australians at Bristol.

It was a serious blow to Sussex in the second innings when Hampshire required only 126 to win. Boyes captured 11 Notts wickets for 129 runs.

Narrow Shave

Worcester had a narrow escape at Leicester, where, at the close of play, they required 7 runs to save the innings defeat with only two wickets in hand. Wigginton, in hitting up 120 not out for Leicester, scored his first century in county cricket.

Wally Hammond, who has fared very poorly against the Australians this season, scored 61 against the tourists at Bristol, but he was the only Gloucester batsman to face Fleetwood Smith's wiles with any degree of confidence. Alan Kippax retained his good form, while McCabe scored 61 not out in the drawn match.

Scores, as cable by Reuter, were:

THE ECLIPSE OF A MAHATMA

Recent Events Show Gandhi's Day Is Done

Longevity Too Much For His Reputation

(By MALCOLM MUGGERIDGE)

RECENTLY, a bomb was thrown at Gandhi at Poona—at least, it was intended for him, but the mistimed outburst of a Boy Scout band caused it to be thrown at the wrong car. Previously, he was stoned while travelling in a motor-car; yet, instead of a shudder of horror passing through India, instead of the world Press shrieking atonement—these episodes passed almost unnoticed. It looks as though the Mahatma's day is done.

Seldom, I suppose, was a prophet so honoured in his own country as Gandhi. There was a time when his authority extended through the whole length and breadth of India. Wherever he went his fellow-countrymen assembled in thousands and just stood looking at him, or stepped forward and humbly touched his feet. He was as nearly a divinity as it is possible for a human being in the flesh to be. His famous asceticism, his terrible consistency, his capacity for repeating moral platitudes with warmth and conviction an indefinite number of times, endeared him to the multitude, while his vegetarianism and advocacy of the undiluted gospel of non-violence won him adherents among the pure in heart in all parts of the world.

Reputation Outlived.

If he had died even a year ago the legend enshrining his saintliness would have been already in existence. His canonisation would simply have ripened with time. As things have turned out, his longevity has proved too much for his reputation; and he is like to die less of a saint than at any time during the last forty years of his life.

Theoretically, this should suit him very well, since, like all really subtle and successful demagogues, he has always deprecated attempts to make him appear anything but an ordinary man, and has preached humility as one of the most necessary of virtues. Yet I suspect that, like Bernard Shaw, he has grown too used to publicity not to miss it. How the appetite for that particular commodity grows by what it feeds on! The kingdoms of the earth are relatively easy to refuse; wealth and honours can be easily stripped of their glamour; but the craving to be known, to be noticed, to be regarded as significant—ah! there is something to which the most desiccated of men (perhaps particularly the most desiccated of men, for I often think the more other appetites are stripped away, the more this asserts itself) are prone.

What is the explanation of the decline in Gandhi's prestige? His teaching is just what it was, his way of life is just what it was. Miss Slade has not left him, nor Mr. C. F. Andrews ceased to extol him. He still drinks goat's milk, wears a loin-cloth, and indulges in prodigious fasts.

Pennily Of Politics

The fact is, I think, that he is now suffering the consequences of ever having mixed himself up in the political game. He has allowed himself to be used by politicians, has allowed his principles to be adapted to serve purely party ends, with the result that they, and his reputation, have been damaged.

Take, for instance, his advocacy of home-spun cloth. This was to him essentially a moral question. Ruskin and Tolstoy, his two favourite authors, filled him with a passionate hatred of machines, of the complexity of an industrialised society; his sympathy with the peasants gave him a humanitarian reason for wishing to revive hand-spinning, since it provided them with a means of supplementing the wretchedly inadequate yield of their work in the fields. The spinning-wheel became in his eyes a symbol of all that was good and pure and true. "Spin, my brothers, spin, and happiness, self-government, prosperity, blessings of every sort and description will be yours," was the refrain of all his speeches and writings.

So far he was true to type. Mahatmas invariably owe their success to some such moral simplification. In Gandhi's case, however, the matter went further. His symbol, the spinning-wheel, became the symbol of the Nationalist movement; and the home-spun that he had praised as the uniform of virtue became the uniform of a political party.

Exploited By Industrialists

Indian mill-owners saw their opportunity in his teaching. Foreign cloth was vile; therefore, destroy it! boycott it! and—create a virtual monopoly in the Indian market for their own. It was too good a chance to miss. They became Gandhi's enthusiastic disciples, poured money into his lap, and pronounced him India's heaven-sent saviour.

The politicians found him no less useful. Their supporters, though noisy and influential, were few: for the most part, students and unemployed university graduates, the sort of intellectual riff-raff to be found running the business of politics in any part of the world. What they most needed was some link with the peasantry; and Gandhi was ideally suited to be such a link. Simple people adored him; his prestige as a holy man, an ascetic, gave supernatural sanction to a political campaign with which his name was associated, and when the campaign took the form of an organised refusal to pay rent and taxes, he was irresistible.

Thus Gandhi provided mill-owners with a religion that helped them to sell more cloth and politicians with a religion that enormously extended the scope of their demagoguery, and peasants with a religion that relieved them of financial obligations. Is it any wonder that the religion took on? Is it any wonder that, wherever he went in India, he was acclaimed by the multitude?

There was, however, a snag. He had to make promise; not the sort of promises Mahatmas habitually make—promises of spiritual salvation, of inward recompense for outward suffering; specific promises. He had to promise results; and as, in the event, the results he promised have not been forthcoming, he and his gospel have been discredited.

And gosh! how she did hate him when she married him!

TIMELY WARNING

A new type of bathing costume makes it impossible for the wearer to sink. We will just have to think out a new excuse in place of: "But, my dear, I was only teaching her to swim."

In The Country

The Farmer: Making hay while the sun shines.

The Farmer's Daughter: Making whoopee while the moon shines.

PROBLEM

An escaped prisoner was found asleep in a collar beside a case of whisky and half a loaf. It is not known what he intended to do with all the bread.

Something To Gulp At

It is pointed out that there are no women sword-swallowers. But there must be lots of women just as good if they can swallow some of the tales we tell them.

Answered

Well, "Worried Mother," if your daughter dislikes work and won't get up in the morning, you should send her out to service.

DUMP-PROOF

Rubber is now being used in building. Just the thing for the garage.

BY EXPERIENCE

"The pens you have here never seem to write," said the bridegroom, who was marrying for the third time, when asked to sign the register.

SIMPLE, WATSON

Elastic, we are told, gets tired. This probably explains why it stretches.

TRY THIS ON SOMEBODY

"Give me a sentence using the words 'avenue' and 'street'." "We avenue baby at our house, and it's street times as noisy as any I never heard."

LONG OR SHORT

"I ordered macaroni," said the diner; "will it be long?" "I'm afraid I don't know," replied the waitress; "we never measure it."

DEFINITION

Penury—wages of the pen.

The Actor's Lunch

A role plenty of fat in it.

Boy: "When I grow up I intend to have a car."
Girl: "When I grow up I want to find somebody who will take me about in one."

"Do you think our hostess will sing to us?"
"I am afraid so. We were thirteen at table."

The Eclipse of A Mahatma

An "Inferior Mahatma"
Even in India, there has probably never been such a scene as when Gandhi sailed for England to attend the Round-Table Conference. It was as though everyone thought, "Now he's going, everything's as good as settled. He's bound to get his way."

Well, he went and did not get his way; foreign cloth was burnt and boycotted, and nothing happened except that Indian mill-owners made large profits and Japan flooded the country with imitation home-apron complete with a picture of the Mahatma to give it sanctity;
rent and taxes were withheld and,
if anything, the peasants were worse off than before.

Not even Gandhi's reputation could withstand such shocks. It was not so much the collapse of the Nationalist Movement that damaged him as the feeling that,
if a movement with which a Mahatma is associated fails, then he must be an inferior sort of Mahatma. And, or Gandhi, it is Mahatma or nothing. He is not intelligent enough to hold his own just as a politician. Explode his divinity, and all that remains is a poor little wizened old bore.

His divinity has been exploded.
He has made the great mistake, for a Mahatma, of committing himself to a political party and a political programme, and of associating himself with the ordinary sort of knockabout politician, whereas he should have stuck to general principles and held aloof from all men —that is, if he wants to go on being a Mahatma. I think he does.

HOW TO TAKE 'ASPRO' FOR DENGUE

AT the first signs of the dreaded Dengue don't procrastinate:—

Take two to three 'ASPRO' tablets every two hours until the Fever abates and the pain ceases. 'ASPRO' is the greatest Fever Antidote ever given to the world. No other medicine has its anti-pyretic, anti-periodic and antigerminal propensities after ingestion in the system.
'ASPRO' is far more effective than quinine and there are no harmful after effects. Make certain that 'ASPRO' is always in the home ready for any emergency.

Nothing Equals 'ASPRO' for Dengue & Rheumatism

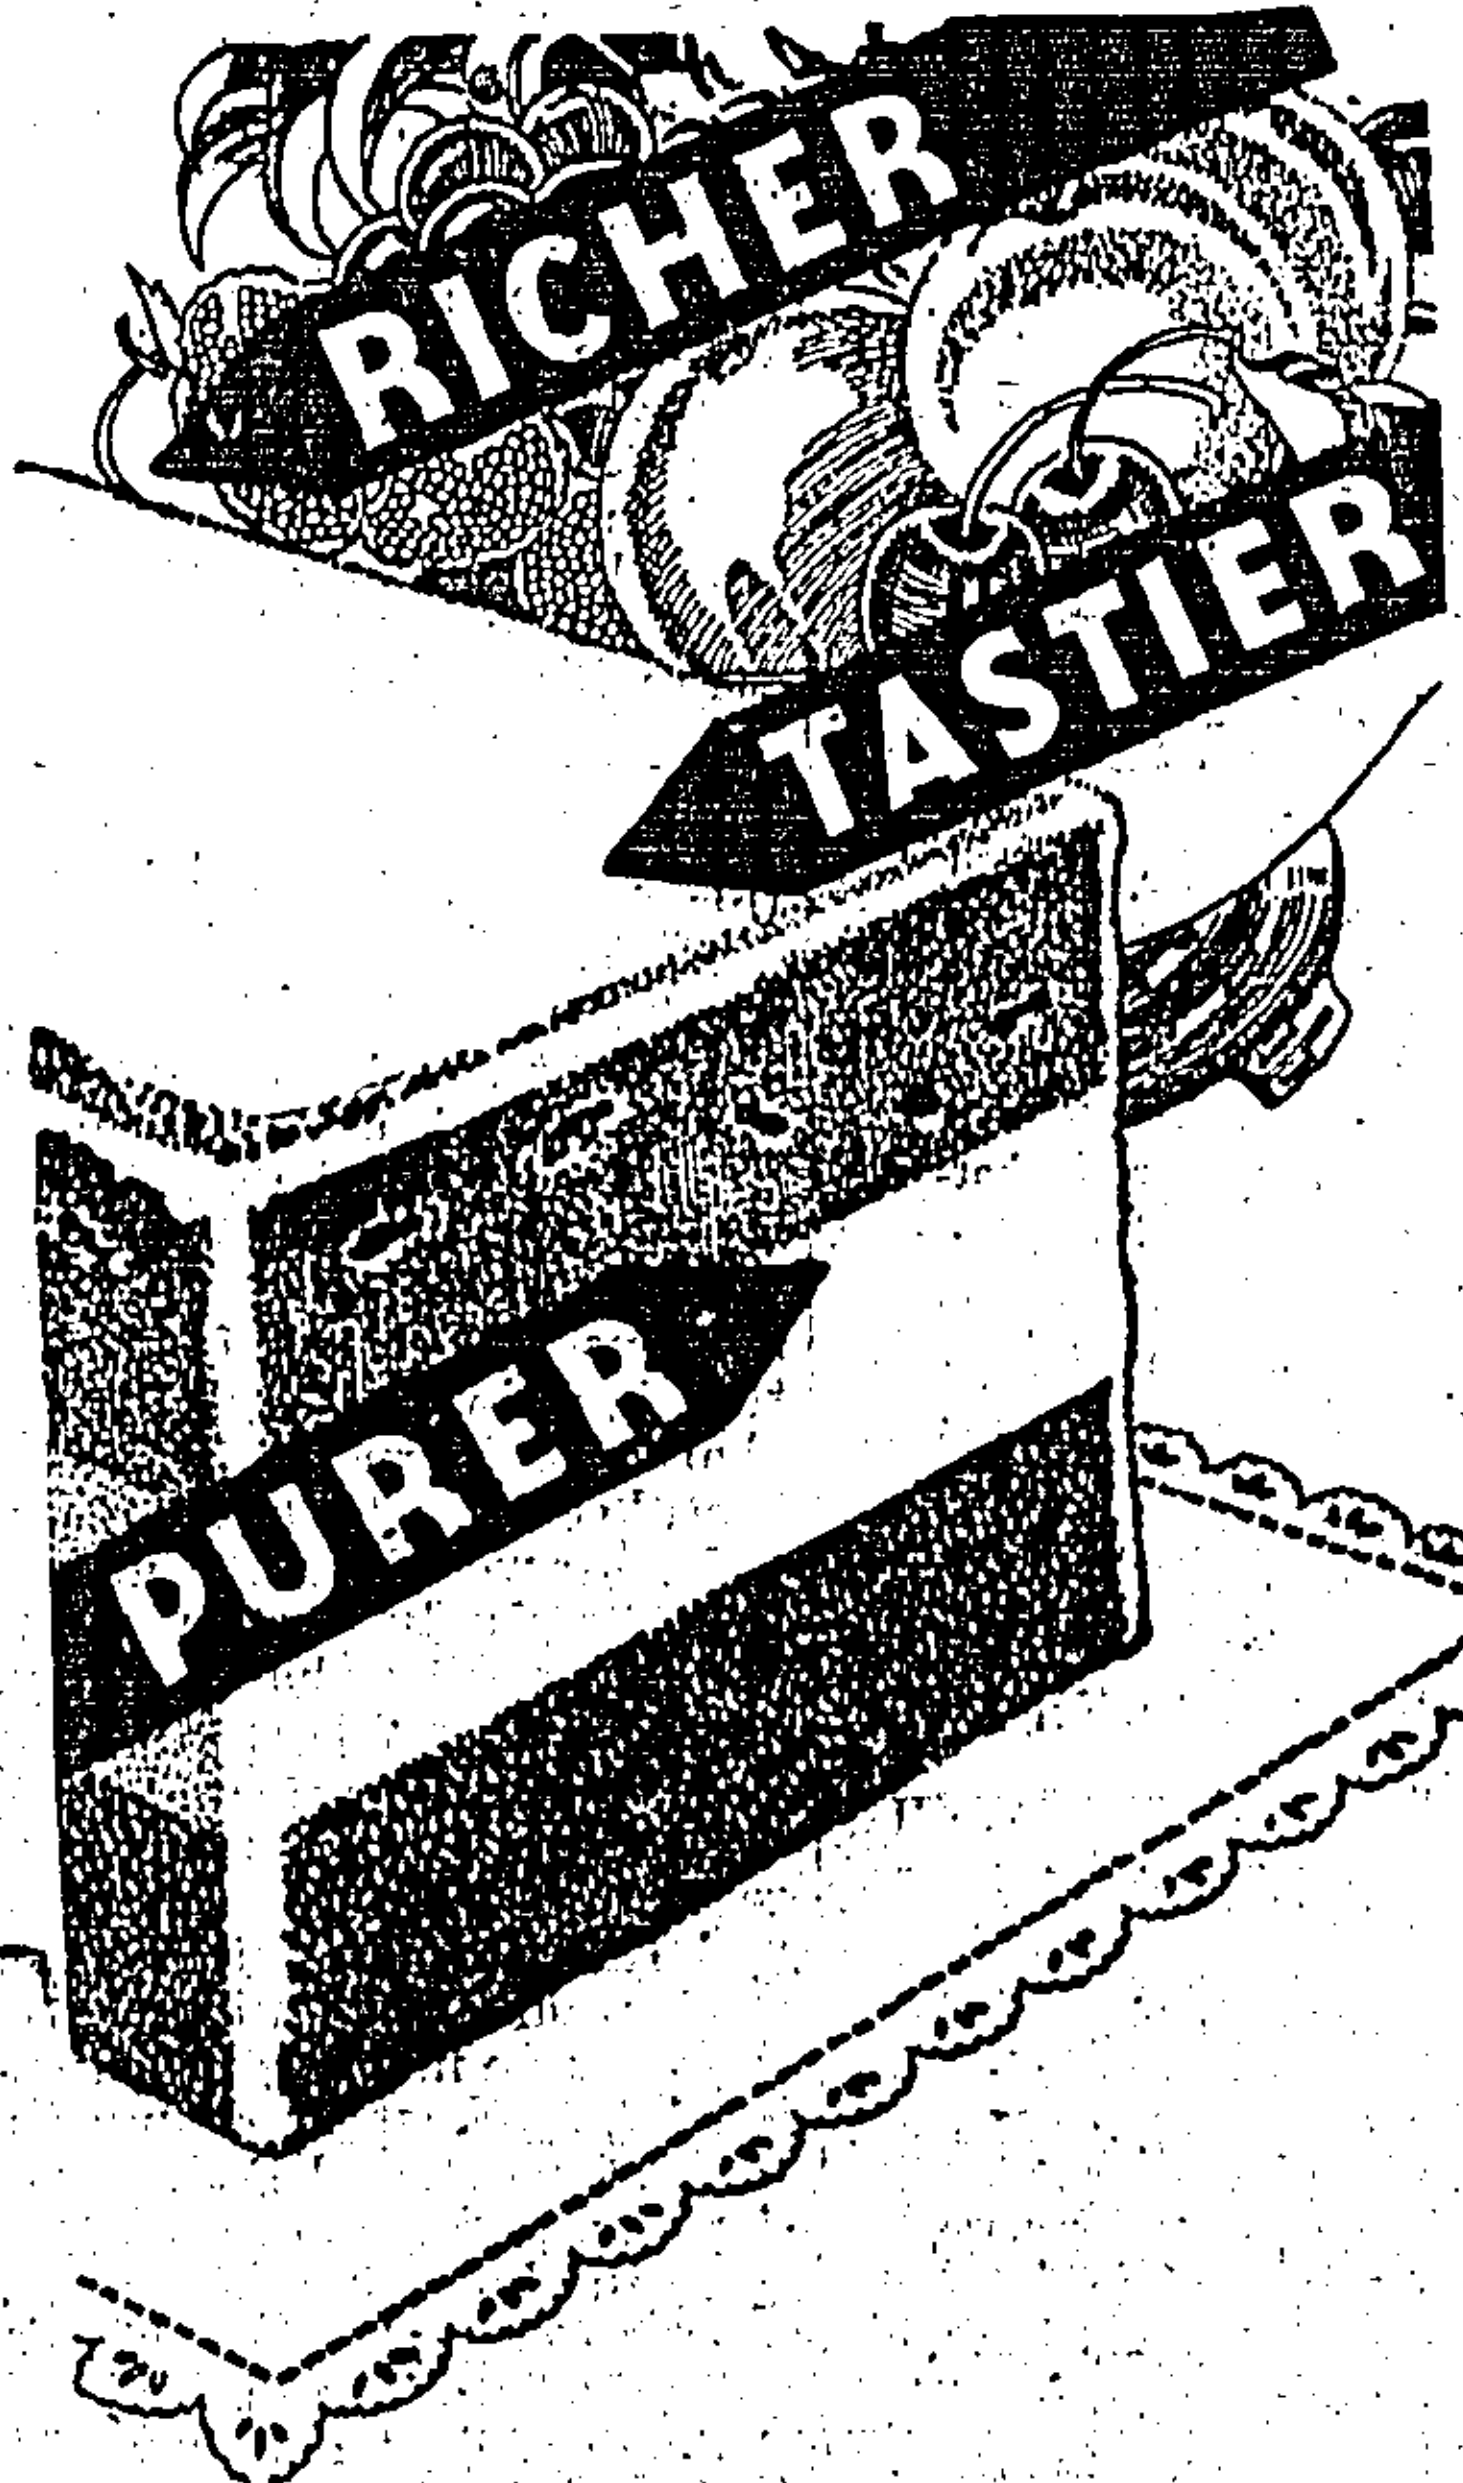

Selby's Estate,
Ingham, North Queensland.
Dear Sirs,
Having used your 'ASPRO' for Dengue Fever and also for Rheumatism, I have found that nothing equals
'ASPRO' for relief from pain.
I was very bad the last week in December, and could not sleep with Rheumatism in my legs. A neighbour called to see me, and she told me that 'ASPRO' Tablets were good for pain. I straightaway sent to the chemist for a box of 'ASPRO', and I can truthfully say that I was surprised at the relief I got after taking the first two 'ASPRO' Tablets—they took away the pain and I could sleep at night. I took three Tablets a night for four nights, and they relieved me, and now I am as well as ever.
Yours faithfully,
(Sgd.) (Mrs.) FLORRIE LOVE.

'ASPRO' Works Wonders for Malaria

Gladstone, Queensland.
Gentlemen,
I think it is up to me to let you know how I have benefited by 'ASPRO'. Ever since 1910 I have been a sufferer from MALARIA FEVER, having contracted same in Rhodesia, German East Africa and the Straits Settlements.
I came to Australia from the latter country five years ago, and for the first two and a half years was continually in hospital in Victoria and New South Wales. On arriving in Queensland, a friend advised me to try 'ASPRO'. I did, and it has worked wonders.
I still continue to get slight attacks of Malaria, but
and if I take a few 'ASPRO' Tablets and hot lemon water, and rest a few hours, I am quite O.K. again.
I wouldn't be without 'ASPRO' for anything and always carry a box about with me. I can thoroughly recommend them to anyone suffering from the same malady.
This testimonial is unsolicited and you may make any use of it that you think fit.
Yours faithfully,

Robert Morrison.

"LET us now praise famous men," says one of the best of our school songs; and it appears that the younger generation is quite willing to do so, however great their hesitation about the further maxim "and our fathers that begat us." There is something safe about a centenary. Famous men can sometimes do very disconcerting things in their later years, when they have learned to despise the conventional, and possibly to resent the gradual supersession which is the ordinary fate of those whose glorious hour of life has receded rather far into the past. But after a hundred years it is possible to see and judge the life as a whole in proper proportion. And how the proportion changes as time goes on! The secret of the growing and fading of reputations is simply that the years add to the greatness of those who planted seed that grew, while those who were content to sit quiescent in the seats of the mighty are buried in a short paragraph of a Dictionary of National Biography.

Robert Morrison was distinctly a seed-planter. He went cap in hand as a young man to the Directors of the old East India Company to ask for a passage out to China in one of their ships, and was refused. The Board of Directors at that time were not merely "something in the City" but something very big in the City; men who bargained with the Ministers of the Crown on terms of equality. But who to-day could give any of their names? They chartered ships, and bought and sold, and paid dividends; but he stood, so far as the Protestant world was concerned, for a sympathetic comprehension of each other by two alien and powerful civilisations. The seed he planted has met many adverse conditions, and still needs careful tending; but it grows.

The London Missionary Society, with which he was connected, was one of the many offshoots of the great Evangelical movement of John Wesley, to whom "go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel" was simply an order that should be literally obeyed. It was started on the broad basis of including everybody that was ready to join in the work. The next half century is a record of first one Church and then another falling to rise to the height of the ideal and founding a Society of its own on a much smaller and narrower scale; three generations later the supporters other than Congregationalists were few and far between; fifty years ago the sole Church of England Director was the late Canon Girdlestone. Missionaries themselves have probably never fully realised the implications of this decision. It is not merely that people bred in a different religion and civilisation are puzzled by controversies they cannot understand; but the failure to co-operate with men whose differences are slight is the worst possible preparation for understanding men whose outlook is fundamentally different.

Morrison and the other early Missionaries had one great asset which their successors miss through no fault of their own;—the halo of adventure. A young man newly appointed to one of the stations founded by Livingstone or Moffat in Central Africa would travel out by ship, train and car, without missing a meal. He would share the journey with commercial travellers and prospectors and store-keepers whose tours are of no interest whatever to the public; and who would have a great deal of local knowledge and views of their own only too freely expressed. In specialising on their own work it has often happened that earnest men have failed to influence, or even antagonised, European neighbours who were nominally of their own religion; forgetting how natural it is that a religion should be judged by its average adherent and not by its saints. At any rate it is a long time since the makers of stories for boys like Henty and Kingdon went to Missionary records for their local colour.

In his translations and dictionary the subject of the commemorative meeting which is to be held to-night showed his insight into the almost appalling complexity of interpreting the west to the great Oriental Religions. It is as easy as it is fatuous to criticise men who tackle so arduous a task; but there is no getting away from the truth that before one can teach a man anything one must first understand him. The preliminary language study itself requires time and a faculty that is not common; the further study of temperament and ways of thinking that enable a man to know just how far he can travel along the same mental road and where he must diverge, which Morrison acquired so completely that he became indispensable even to the East India Company as a go-between, — is extremely rare, and we do well to commemorate a pioneer.

Rain.

RAIN is another thing that ought to have its philosopher. Not, of course, a Public Works Inspector, who tells us that Tytam Tuk is now overflowing, nor a meteorologist who reports a typhoon a couple of hundred miles away;—all these scientific people are wonderful, but essentially inhuman. How many last hopes are given up under the depressing influence of watching the rain come down in perpendicular persistence for three weeks? How many quarrels come from the torpid liver due to missing the accustomed game of golf or tennis? If a really competent psychologist were appointed as a coroner, would he not sometimes report that the deceased thought life was not worth living because he despaired of the rain ever coming to a stop. So we grumble, about all the good and necessary things of life—then we cheer up and realise that everything is for the best in the best of all possible lives as soon as the sun comes out. Rain is one of the things we have that are given to us to keep us properly humble. President Roosevelt's Agricultural scheme sets out to pay farmers some millions of dollars to reduce the acreage under wheat in order to raise the price. Rain cooperates by holding off for a couple of months till the crop is reduced by a third. The farmers complain that they are now no richer because they have nothing to sell. Rain then comes down in torrents and washes a lot of their soil away. On the whole we may conclude that it pays to be polite to rain and take it when it comes. Drought is not as a rule due to any lack of moisture in the clouds. They go drifting over, but refuse to come down. No doubt some day we shall be able to regulate these things by electric discharges or something of that sort. In Southern Rhodesia for several months there is a regular thunder shower every day for some months within a few minutes of four o'clock in the afternoon, and one is invited to "come for tennis at two, and Bridge during the rain". With a reliable system of rain-making we could take a plebiscite for the most convenient hours. Probably a good many would not mind obliging the Public Works Department with an hour and a half of tropical downpour from nine o'clock on Sunday-mornings.

Marie Dressler.

THERE are film stars and film stars. One may sympathise with the general object of such a campaign as has been started in New York for the boycotting of certain Producing Companies as a penalty for salacious productions; and one may agree that the effect of the cinema is on the whole to dissipate the power of mental concentration and to lower the moral tone; but the campaigners lack subtlety. A far better system than the Index Expurgatorius is a system of Index Commendatorius, which would tell people what were the films really worth seeing, especially for the family man who likes to take his children out one night a week for a little entertainment. In such a list the Marie Dressler films would go in as a matter of course.

Some of her advantages were natural. She had features that were good for the photographer, and mobile for expression. It is a very elementary mistake to suppose that a merely pretty face is good for the stage or the screen. Some of the much advertised and most frequently married actresses may have intended to vary their expression but perhaps the camera failed them. Names would not be polite, but one cannot help reflecting "where are the stars of yesterday?" Another natural advantage was a "carrying voice". One did not have to strain to hear even a whisper. But the greatest thing of all was that she had personality. Nothing that the most unintelligent producer can do will prevent a performer who has personality from "stealing" a play. I remember the first appearance of an actor who afterwards became famous. He was allotted the part of the second gravedigger in Hamlet, and from that stopped right into big roles. I cannot remember how Hamlet delivered "to be or not to be" but I do remember all that the second gravedigger has to say. Personality sets up an immediate rapport with the audience which ob-

TRANS-SIBERIA AIR LINE HOPES SHANGHAI-EUROPE ROUTE WILL HARM US

RAPID PROGRESS IN NORTH CHINA

(By Our Aviation Correspondent.)

THE Far East, with its limitless commercial possibilities, comes into the aviation picture once more this week, and what strikes one more than anything else is the great contrast between the north and south of China regarding activities in the air.

I was talking this week with a friend recently returned from the north, and he was particularly struck by the progress made by both the Chinese National Airways and the Eurasia Airways.

It was the Eurasia Airways who recently proposed running a through line from Shanghai to Europe. At first glance a hazardous proposition, both from the point of view of actual risk, and from the point of view of commercial risk.

At present the Eurasia Airways planes, which fly far into the interior, are up against the constant menace of bandits and rebel provinces. The machines frequently return to Shanghai with their fuselages and wings riddled with bullet holes.

The operatives of the Company's wireless stations in the interior are frequently captured by bandits and held to ransom.

In spite of these drawbacks, however, the Company keeps on courageously and hopes, eventually, to have a through line to Europe.

CROSS CHINA SHOULD PAY

When this is eventually an accomplished fact I think it will be a paying proposition, chiefly in view of the fact that it will connect Europe and China in about four days. The fact which I brought up once before, that there are few, if any, intermediate stopping places, might detract from the paying possibilities of this line, although, it strikes one that if the machines fly regularly and with safety, full loadings in each direction are quite within the bounds of possibility.

This, however, appears to me to be a hope of the somewhat distant future as, at present, the interior of China and, to a certain extent, of Russia, is so unsettled that anything like a fixed route can hardly be hoped for.

This of course, is an important thing from our angle in Hong Kong.

A direct route from Shanghai to Europe will not do us any good. It takes a day or two to get to Shanghai, and the time saved would be little less than that occupied by a boat journey to Singapore and a safe flight by Imperial Airways, and, into the bargain, it will be in direct competition with any line running from Europe to Hong Kong.

COMPETING WITH HONG KONG

It behoves us, therefore, to bear this matter in mind, and, if we are tempted to slumber when we think of commercial airways we should consider that if we allow the north to make the first steps and secure the good-will and popularity of the Chinese flying public, our hopes of making aviation in the Colony pay will be thrown back ten or more years.

The C. N. A. C. also, are making great steps with their airways. They started, like many other airways have started, with old equipment, some of it quite unsuitable, but by perseverance they soon developed many paying lines. My friend from the north says that the majority of the C. N. A. C. planes are always well supported, both with passengers and with mail.

The Company are now taking the matter well in hand, and will terminate everything else. Even through the indirect medium of the screen one could understand how Marie became one of the pillars of Hollywood in private life. Personality has nothing to do, with private or public. What the Hollywood people have to do is to find some more people who can act and "put it over"; and what the reformers have to do is to back up the producers who give a chance to actors and actresses like Marie Dressler.

shortly be running several new Lockheed machines, in place of the Stinsons, which served the Peking line, and with new Martin, to replace the amphibious Loening on the Yangtze River run.

The line to Canton has fallen through temporarily, through the loss of two of their machines, but it is expected shortly to put this line on a paying basis once more. The C. N. A. C. are 45 per cent owned by the Curtis Company of America, the balance being in Chinese hands, chiefly under the control of the Government.

The only local aviation company, the Far Eastern Aviation Company, recently gave a great de-

SIR WILLIAM SHENTON, KT.
This is the first of the exclusive "Sunday Herald" series of sketches of leading Colony residents by Mr. A. F. Konya, the talented Hungarian artist.

THERE is hardly an activity in the Colony, either sporting, educational, or charitable which has not felt the benefit of the assistance of Sir William Shenton, Kt.

An unofficial member of the Executive and Legislative Councils since 1927, Sir William came to the Colony in 1908, when he commenced practice as a solicitor with Messrs. Deacons.

Married in 1908, Sir William and Lady Shenton have two children, Yvonne and David.

Sir William was educated at Eastman's Royal Naval Academy, near Winchester, and at Heidelberg, Germany. He is the son of Mr. William Shenton, solicitor, of Winchester. Following his father's footsteps, he took honours in both his intermediate and final examinations.

The list of his offices and interests are numerous, and include: Member of the Standing Committees of the Legislative Council for Law, Public Works, and Finance.

Unofficial Justice of the Peace. President of the Hong Kong League of Nations Society, Philharmonic Society, and Shek-O Club.

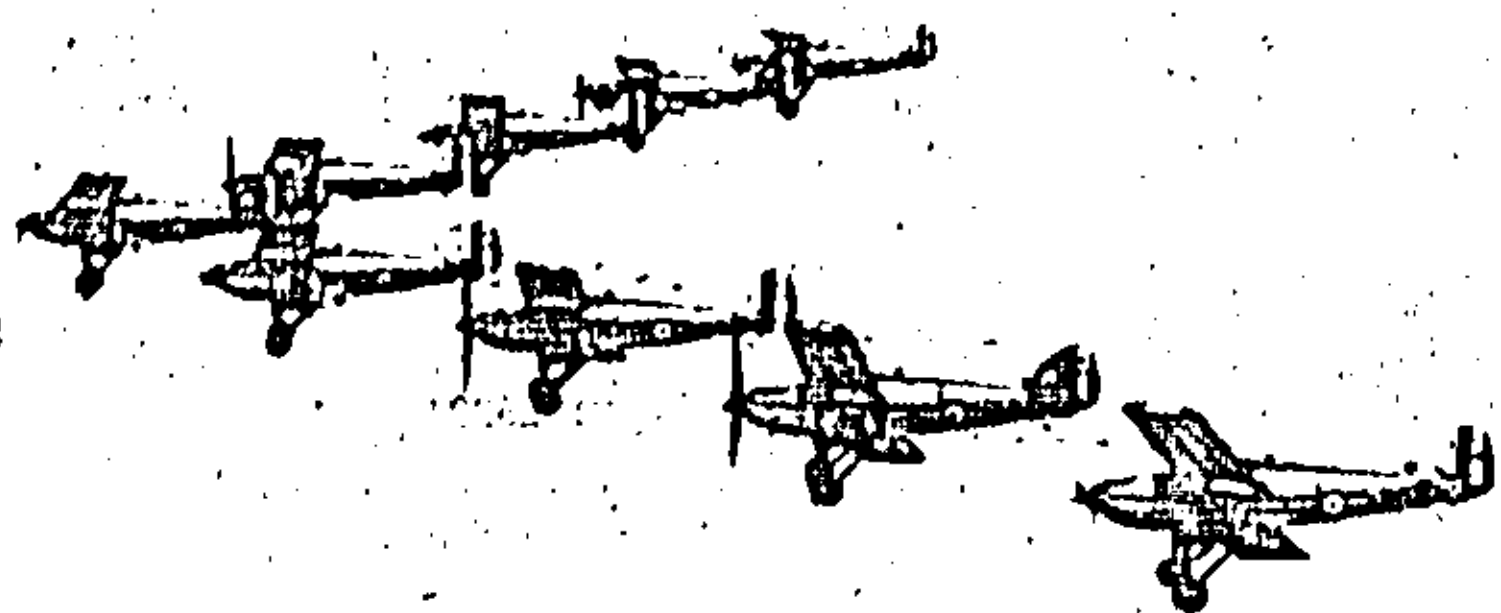

Past President of the European Y.M.C.A., Sports Club, and St. George's Society.

Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Hong Kong Society for the Protection of Children.

HONG KONG AND THE NEW TERRITORIES. — No. 116.

Lizard's Eggs.

It may not be easy for many people to go climbing about the hillsides in search of bird's nests and eggs but everyone in Hong Kong, sooner or later, comes across the eggs of lizards or snakes. With the exception of the Bamboo Snake, which being a Viper brings forth its young alive and active, all local species of snakes and lizards lay eggs. The easiest to find are those of the house lizards, the geckos which run along the walls and floors in search of small insects. These geckos lay their eggs in amongst piles of stones or bricks. They are almost spherical, white and about the size of pens.

A few days ago we noticed in a hole in the side of a bank eight eggs. It was raining hard at the time and some of the eggs were partly covered with wet mud and some had been dented and soiled. These were collected taken home and placed in a tall dark vase from which escape was impossible. Each day a little water was sprinkled on them and after a short while two of the eggs hatched. Incidentally, the eggs were oval 1/4 inch long and 1/2 inch across and with a tough but calcareous shell. It was fully expected that snakes would hatch out but instead there appeared lizards. Each was four inches long, mostly tall, at the time of hatching. They were the young of our largest species of Skink Mabuya longicauda. The Skinks are the long tailed very smooth lizards which are common in the Colony; they must not be confused with the Crested Lizard Calotes, the Geckos and the single representative of the Lacertidae, Tokodyrion scutellatus, known locally as the grass dragon, 'tso lung'.

The Silly Senses. A naturalist can find many ways to amuse himself in the summer months even though it is too hot to climb mountains peaks for orchids and too wet to sit and watch birds. We recently turned again to the sea for pleasure and interest. Some day Hong Kong will awake to the fact that it is one of the few seaside resorts in the tropics that does not possess a marine aquarium and everyone will say, "Why have we not had one for years?" Honolulu and Manila, Batavia and even Singapore, but that subject need not be discussed now.

At Aberdeen we stopped and purchased a length of net a ball of twine and a piece of strong cord. We had previously equipped ourselves with two large glass jars a small gold fish bowl and a ring of galvanised wire. Deft fingers soon converted the net, the wire the twine and the cord into a very serviceable fishing net and then armed with net and gold fish bowl we swam out to the raft at Stanley and commenced operations.

The apparatus was so simple and inexpensive that the fish were deluded and presently the goldfish bowl contained a number of beautifully marked fish and a prawn or two. A handkerchief was tied over the bowl and the return swim to shore undertaken when the catch was transferred to a large jar. These fish, and others similarly obtained, are alive and we trust happy in their new surroundings. They are fed in the mornings on fragments of dried prawn and the seawater, previously filtered through a charcoal and sand filter, is kept oxygenated by means of a constant stream of air bubbles.

MISS WHITE ENAMOURED WITH COLONY

"Just Too Wonderful" Says Film Star.

"SO FRESH AND CLEAN"

"I think your city and island are just too wonderful—your streets are so clean," Miss Marjorie White, one of America's most glamorous blonde film stars, told a Sunday Herald representative yesterday afternoon when interviewed at the Hong Kong Hotel where she is staying.

Miss White, accompanied by Mr. Edwin T. Tierney, arrived in the Colony on the President Hoover from Shanghai on Thursday night. Conditions on her arrival, in the wake of a mild typhoon and miserable showery weather, were far from ideal. Even our most cherished view of "Hong Kong by Night" was shrouded in dull and heavy rainclouds.

But yesterday dawned bright and sunny, revealing our Peak and harbour in all their magnificence and thus enabling the charming little visitor to obtain a true impression of Hong Kong.

"Not Like Shanghai"

The opportunity of seeing all the Colony has to offer in Oriental beauty and scenic panorama was not missed, and both Miss White and Mr. Tierney were early sightseers around the town, visiting the Chinese section of the city.

Yesterday afternoon a car trip to Repulse Bay was sufficient to place Hong Kong far ahead of any other port in the East in her estimation. Little wonder then that her first sentence to our representative was in eulogistic praise of Hong Kong's beauty.

"The ride to Repulse Bay was marvellous—we think your island is grand. The place is so fresh and clean, quite unlike Shanghai, isn't it?" she said.

"So you like our city?" asked our representative. "Yeah," replied Miss White, offering a specimen of that winning smile that has conquered film land, "and we hope to see more of it before we leave."

"The Woman Hater"

Before leaving America, Miss White completed, "The Woman Hater," her latest film for the Columbia Studio, and is now on vacation. From Hong Kong she will visit Manila and later Europe. Miss White is a British subject having been born in Winnipeg, Canada, and is anxious to make her first visit to England.

After her successful debut performance at the Hong Kong Hotel Roof Garden last night, Miss White and Mr. Tierney will make personal appearances at the Queen's Theatre on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights, when they will give song-and-dance numbers and perhaps a dialogue act.

Miss White and Mr. Tierney also made personal appearances in the Shanghai theatres, being heartily acclaimed by the Shanghai picture-going community.

LOK FAU CAMPERS MAKE RETURN

Ideal Holiday In The Mountains.

REV. NASH SPEAKS OF EXPERIENCE

"While Hong Kong was swelling, we were enjoying lovely weather up at Lok Fau," said the Rev. L. L. Nash when interviewed by the Sunday Herald yesterday. "Although we experienced perfect weather during the first week, the last ten days of our holidays were very wet and windy."

The party of campers, including the Rev. and Mrs. L. L. Nash, Mr. D. Orr and Miss R. Ingram, left Hong Kong on Friday, July 13. They arrived in Canton the next day and where were joined by a party of twelve. Under the guidance of Mr. Lockwood, secretary of Y. M. C. A. (Canton), the party left Canton in cars for the foot of the mountain.

It was raining heavily and the roads were far from good. On no less than four occasions the cars got bogged, and all had to get out and push. They had expected to arrive at the stopping place at between 11 a.m. and noon, but they arrived at 3 p.m. Although weary after their strenuous morning they had to walk five or six miles from the road to the monastery where they stayed the night.

Hard Beds. The hospitality of the monks was greatly appreciated, the only trouble being that they had to sleep on hard Chinese beds. Next morning feeling rather stiff, they climbed up the 3,800-foot mountain to the camp, and arrived just in time for lunch.

The camp was well organised, walks, swimming, and games helping to pass the time away. A special social committee was appointed and the arrangement were entirely in their hands. At night small socials, in which everybody joined, were held.

The first week was perfect, said the Rev. Nash, the air being so fresh and cool and the sun so bright. The plains for 20 miles around could be seen on the very clear days, and at night the lights of Canton could be seen faintly on the horizon.

Four Hours Sunshine. But then came the bad weather. In the last ten days the sun was only seen for about four hours, and that was one morning. Although the rain came down in torrents and the ITINERARY OF H.M.S. CAPE TOWN.

Replacing Caradoc On China Station.

H.M.S. Caradoc, at present on the China Station, is to be replaced by H.M.S. Capetown, which left Plymouth for Hong Kong last Thursday.

The following is her itinerary to the East. Arrive Gibraltar, tomorrow, leave for Malta on August 9, arrive on August 13. Leave for Port Said on August 20. Leave Port Said on August 22 for Suez and Aden, arriving at the latter port on August 27. After a day's stay at Aden she will leave for Colombo, where she is due on September 4, and where she will remain for four days. She is due at Singapore on September 13 and will leave for Hong Kong on September 17, arriving here on September 22.

HARBOUR OFFICE ARRANGEMENTS.

Holiday Hours.

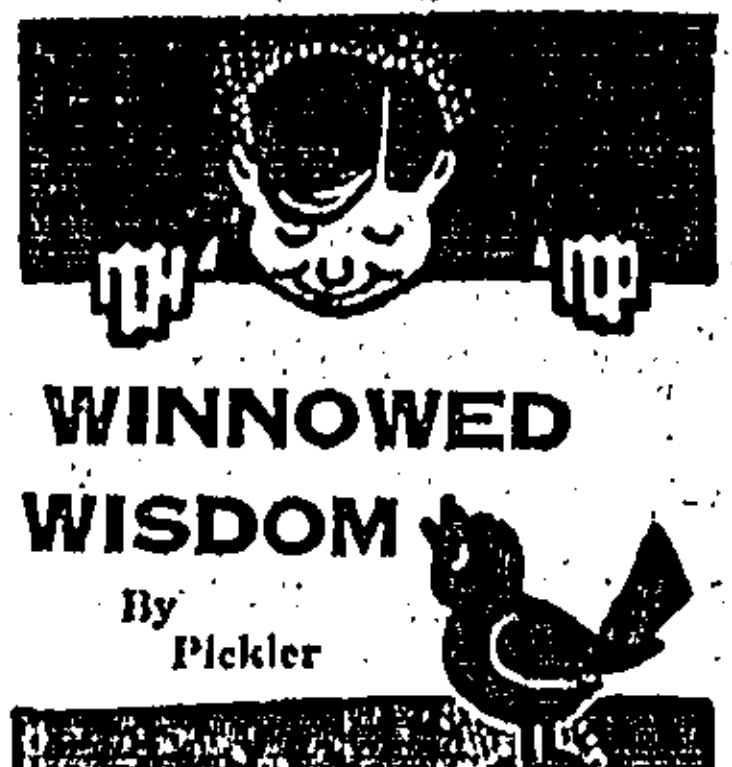

To-morrow being a public holiday the following arrangements have been made for opening the Harbour Office.

Entry and Clearance Office will be open from 10 a.m. to 12 noon. Junk Office will be open from 11 a.m. to 12 noon.

Merchandise Marine Office will be closed all day.

FAR EAST HEALTH BULLETIN

Calcutta is still suffering from a considerable epidemic of cholera, 66 cases being reported in the health bulletin of Eastern Ports for the week ended July 28. China ports are comparatively free from dangerous diseases, only two cases of small-pox being notified in Shanghai.

UNLIKE the vast majority of Hong Kongites, my social connections and pretensions at Home were nothing to brag about. In fact, I had no People—only folks. Imagine, therefore my gratification on arrival in this Colony at being permitted to enjoy the company and conversation of what I understand the French or Romans call Bong-tong.

Ah! Ploeb, that I was, I came to Hong Kong, And learned of my people to prate; Such seems the habit of all your Bongtong.

To mend, it is never too late. The village postmistress my Aunt Polly is.

So was it of me very wrong, To mention that she was a lady of cash,

To awe my good friends the Bongtong. My dad drives a cart for a seller of coal.

So his horse I could mention with truth. If they thought him a hunter, could I be to blame?

That would be a shame, yes, forsooth.

But the longer I live here the more I realise everybody who is somebody lives on the Peak. Hong Kong Society, Kowloon or Peak.

How with propriety of it to speak? For HIGH society where would you seek?

With any reason, save on the Peak? The lower the level, the lower the clique.

Obvious that, any day of the week. Number One topside, Number Two by the creek.

(These terms mysterious to me are as Greek.) But what is the reason of Mr. Two's pique?

Why are some brasses and others no meek? What is the difference between nibble and creak?

And isn't a snob a sort of a freak? And—

(Man, man! your rhymes are beginning to creep. — Editor.)

In the face of such jealousy, it looks as though I must relapse into Limerick.

There was a young man of Hong Kong, Whose name was ten syllables long.

He signed with a hyphen, And soon found his wife in, The circles of Hong Kong's Bongtong.

There was a young man of Hong Kong, Who was one of the high social throng.

He lived on the Peak, Dined out twice a week, But his life though gay was not long.

There was a young man of Hong Kong, Whose purse was not very long.

He signed plenty chit, And bimeby flit, To that limbo of John—Canton.

TOBACCO THROWN INTO GAOL.

Heavy Penalty Asked By Prison Dept.

A fine of $200, in default four months' hard labour, was imposed on Pang Tung, an unlicensed hawker, by Mr. Q. A. A. MacFadyen at the Central Magistracy yesterday morning, for throwing several plugs of tobacco, four packets of cigarettes and three packets of Tiger Balm into Victoria Gaol without the permission of the gaol authority.

Mr. G. L. Buchanan, Chief Warden, stated that the goods were thrown into the gaol from Chan-cery Lane. He said that the prison authority takes a serious view on the matter and asked for a heavy penalty.

At the expiration of three months the name of The New Taxi Company Limited will, unless cause is shown to the contrary, be struck off the register and the company will be dissolved.

PRESENTATION TO REV. WALDEGRAVE

Gift From Chinese At Sailors' Home.

TRIBUTE TO STAFF

The Rev. G. T. Waldegrave received a pleasant surprise last Tuesday, when Mr. H. Watt, manager of the Sailors' Home and Seamen's Institute, requested him to attend an assembly of the members of the Chinese Staff of the Institution and receive a present on his retirement. Mr. Lo Lam-tai, the Chinese Steward, made the presentation. The gift was a silver cup, suitably engraved.

Mr. Lo said: "I have been asked, on behalf of the Chinese Staff of this Institute, to present you with this Cup. We are very sorry you are leaving, but fully realise that your Home Country is calling, and we hope that your successor will show us as much kindness as you have done. We wish you all success in your new appointment, wherever it may be, and that 'Good Joss' may go with you."

In reply, the Rev. Waldegrave said that he hardly knew how to thank the Staff for the gift. What made it most valuable was what it represented, and he was very glad that the name of each donor was inscribed on it; a perpetual reminder of the faithful service so loyally given to him during his many years in the Colony.

During the first few years there had been many changes of Staff, and through all those changes, one, the oldest member of the staff, had remained true to the Institute. For some years, however, there had been the same staff, largely increased when the present building was taken over, and from that Staff, working under Mr. H. Watt, splendid service had always been rendered, for which he sincerely thanked them.

It was only natural, he added, that they might be wondering whether the new Chaplain, the Rev. Cyril Brown, would want to make any changes in the terms of their employment, but he could assure them from his personal knowledge of Mr. Brown that they need have no fears that their present happy conditions would be changed for the worse. If there were any changes they would be improvements, and he hoped that they would give Mr. Brown the same service as they had given.

He concluded by saying that he looked forward to being able to entertain them at a dinner before his departure.

ST. DAVID'S SOCIETY HOLD PICNIC.

Large Crowd Make Launch Trip.

The first annual bathing picnic of the St. David's Society was held yesterday when a large number of members left Queen's Pier at 3 p.m. in a launch for Picnic Bay.

Among the members present were Mr. W. H. E. Thomas, Vice-President of the Society, and Mrs. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Hooper, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Thomas, Miss Peat, Miss M. Smith, Mrs. Jones, The Rev. E. G. Powell, Captain Evans of S.S. Evonol, and Messrs D. Davies, A. E. Collins, Lloyd-Jones, I. Glover, F. E. Lewis, W. H. Edmonds, G. Young and E. R. Price.

The catering was in the hands of Messrs. Lane, Crawfords Ltd.

MORRISON CENTENARY SERVICE

If the weather continues fine the open air service, in connection with the Morrison Centenary Celebration, to be held at the Volunteers' Headquarters, Parade Ground at 8 o'clock this evening, will take place as scheduled. Any further rain, however, will make the turf too soft to support the benches, and it will be necessary to hold the service in the Cathedral.

CANADIAN CHINESE CLUB PICNIC AT CASTLE PEAK

A swimming outing to Castle Peak will be held to-day by the Canadian Chinese Club, which was formed last week by members of the Colony's Canadian-Returned Chinese. A specially chartered bus will leave the Star Ferry Pier at 2 p.m.

Formidable Thirsts In Human Life Ambitions That Have Smashed Nations

WHAT DOES IT LEAD TO?

(By the Rev. J. N. Lewis Bryan.)

LIFE in a tropical climate can be a very thirsty kind of business, in fact the higher the temperature, the greater the thirst. This, after all, cannot be wondered at, since on the hottest days what goes in through the mouth sometimes does not go any lower than the neck.

The consequence is that a vast number of people spend a great deal of their time and a great deal of money trying to quench it. If they keep it up long enough, and too unduly, they find at last, that they have nothing to show for it, except a collection of hot-nails on their livers, which, I believe, can be exceedingly painful, and despite everything the thirst persists.

It is not only in the East one finds this to be true. The West does its share. I remember at the beginning of the War, hearing of a district visitor going her rounds. One day, she came to one house which was opened to her by a proud Mother, who hastened to inform her visitor that her son had, that very day, joined the Navy. "Oh," said the district visitor, "and what is his capacity?" "His capacity?—Oh, about three quarts."

It was hardly the reply the good lady expected, but it goes to show what can be done in that direction, when people really put their backs into the job.

But there are thirsts, we come across in human life, just as great, just as formidable as the physical one. There is the thirst for Power, one that is not confined to any one particular walk in life. So great has been its influence, that it has smashed nations, ruined communities, and made countless thousands sad. Napoleon, had it. He wanted to rule the world, but what did that overweening ambition cost him and the nation over which he ruled? Thousands of human lives were left littering the battlefields of Europe, and he himself died an exile in St. Helena. Alexander the Great had it. He conquered Egypt, he humbled all India that could be reached. Nowhere was there any organised power to give him the stimulus of a good fight. He was the supreme master; he was not yet thirty, and there were no more worlds to conquer, and being tired of living he died.

Sabre-Rattle In Europe. Within our own lifetime we have seen another thirst for power that shattered the peace of the world. We are still living in the aftermath of it, still paying the bitter price, while the rattle of the sabre is being heard again in Europe, and the future is dark and uncertain, through precisely the same cause.

There is the thirst for wealth. The pages of life and experience are crammed with the stories of men and women who have sacrificed honour and truth, and even life itself, in search of this El Dorado, that it ever beckoning them, luring them, driving them inexorably to their doom. There is nothing wrong in money, provided it is acquired honestly, and above board, so long as it is not made the be-all and the end-all of life, so long as in the getting of it men do not plant their hooves on the faces of others, and use them as stepping stones. It is somewhat difficult to understand the mentality of those who hoard their ill-gotten, (or otherwise), gains, until the death-rattle is in their throats. They cannot take their gold with them when the curtain drops on their life-act play here, and if they could, it would bring them little comfort, for above a certain temperature it melts.

If he had used it in little acts of kindness, he would not have to wait for a crown, he would take part of it with him.

Thirst For Position.

There is the thirst for place and position, to keep one's end up in society and if possible a little higher up in that society than we should really be. People live beyond their means to get it, indulge in countless subterfuges to attain it, and what is it worth in the long-run? There is the thirst for pleasure, the greatest thirst in the world to-day, as it has always been. "Eat, drink and be merry, fling the pearl of our souls into a cup of wine, tread the primrose path to the sound of flutes, life is short then let it be a merry one," until we are gripped by that appalling materialism that laughs everything that is ideal out of life, or by sex-obsession, that tells us that the secret of happiness lies in an increase of sensation. The word "lies" is correct.

What does it all lead to? Pleasure pure and simple. You find the same all down the ages. Why? because the deepest things in man can never be satisfied by mere pleasure and sensation. We are not composed simply of bodies. So we are driven to another thirst,—that longing that springs up sometimes in the hearts of men, when everything else has been tried and found wanting, and restlessness, and hopelessness are crushing them down.

The Promised Fountain.

Here at last is a thirst that can be quenched. Nineteen hundred years there came One Who dared to say "If any man thirst, let him come unto Me and drink," and "Whosoever believeth on Me shall never thirst." No one else since the world began has dared to use such words, and no one who has ever lived and put them to the test, has ever found that promise to be vain.

The world is full of dope, full of every kind of quack medicine to quench the thirsts of men. They may act for a time, but the effect soon passes and leaves the soul more thirsty than ever before.

Thank God, you can't buy it. If that were necessary mighty few of us (if any) could pay the price. It is not the gift of any creed, or Church or sect. There are no papers to fill in, no qualifications necessary, except a broken and a contrite heart. The supply is not limited by any freak of circumstance, it will last until the end of time.

On the morning after one of the disastrous battles in the late South African War, a Private in the Black Watch was found, lying out on the veldt, wounded and dying. A stretcher-bearer offered him a drink from the waterbottle, he was carrying. "No," came the answer slowly from his dying lips, "Give it to some of the other chaps lying around. I have tasted the Water of Life and I am satisfied." Yes, satisfied with Him in the din of battle, satisfied with Him in the jaws of death, and more than satisfied to awaken up after His likeness. And such is the hope and consolation, of everyone who has tasted the Water of Life, even as he did.

GANG ROUND-UP IN QUEEN'S ROAD

Rival Factions Face Serious Charge.

NINE MEN IN COURT

As a sequel to the free-for-all brawl, when lorry drivers fought against rattle workers, on Friday night, in Queen's Road East, nine Chinese were charged before Mr. E. W. Hamilton at the Central Magistracy yesterday morning, with being in possession of weapons for an unlawful purpose, and for unlawful assembly.

Chan So, a rattle worker, and Chan Yun-cha, were charged with being in possession of 11 hammers and files for an unlawful purpose.

Leung Hon, and Lau Wing, sandal-wood workers, were charged with unlawful assembly at the Tak Ming tea house, while Mak Wai, Li Yung, Chan Wing, Chan Chan, a lorry driver, and Wong Hung, also a lorry driver, are also facing the same charge.

Accused were arrested by a posse of police, led by Detective Inspector J. Murphy and Detective Sergeant Fitchie, who dispersed the large crowd which had gathered to watch the fight.

The case was remanded until Tuesday, at 11.45 a.m.

CORRESPONDENCE

SALVATION OF CHINA.

(To the Editor, the "Sunday Herald.")

Sir.—In your issue of July 29, your correspondent L. C. E. commenting on "What China Needs" endeavoured to discuss the political situation with certain strictures on Mr. Hu Han-min's refusal to join hands with General Chiang Kai-shek, to which I trust you will allow me to reply.

First, let me say at once that I quite agree with L. C. E. when he asserts: "To steer China clear off these gathering war clouds, the nation has its eyes fixed on Mr. Hu Han-min. To me he is also the man of the hour." Where I think L. C. E. is at fault and needs clearer understanding of the present political outlook in China is when he tries to throw the onus on Mr. Hu Han-min for the grave peril that hangs over China to-day.

L. C. E. asks why Mr. Hu Han-min has refused to accept the offerings and pleadings of the Central Government. It is very hard for the man in the street to understand. But has not Mr. Hu Han-min told Nanking time and again that so long as there is no position assurance of the Central Government being founded on the principle of discipline and order as set down under the Eight Essentials embodied in his public statement issued in December, 1933, he could not work in harmony with General Chiang Kai-shek and Wang Ching-wei? Mr. Hu Han-min has sedulously maintained ever since that unless his policy of reconstruction is met with acceptance, he cannot join with the Central Government. Mr. Hu Han-min offers the only means by which the Chinese people can preserve the Republic, but so far it has been evasively rejected. None but those devoid of the sense and spirit of a true patriot can be blind to the perils that are impending over China at this hour under the shadow of Japan.

Whatever the criticism of Mr. Hu Han-min's attitude, he has the merit of setting before himself a single definite aim as detailed in his public statement of December last, which he has pursued with steadfast purpose, without deviating one hairbreadth.

L. C. E. should ask what are the various motives and impulses which animate Nanking to induce

Mr. Hu Han-min to resume his responsibility with the Central Government or to accept a million dollars or two for visiting abroad. Probing deeper into these various motives and impulses, one finds cunning and perfidy more than anything else. Do not forget, cunning is not high policy of state. All the "repeated offerings and pleadings" of Nanking to persuade Mr. Hu Han-min to visit abroad is to have the Nestor of Chinese politics out of the way, so that the Nanking Government can effect only an apparent unity in the country and present a false front to the Nation or Nations from whom Nanking strives with might and main to obtain a substantial loan. This constitutes the real ulterior motive back of the "various offerings and pleadings" from Nanking to Mr. Hu Han-min.

A huge loan from abroad to bolster up a spineless government in Nanking is not what China requires, what the bulk of the Chinese people, from Manchuria to Canton, look for is to rely on a man of the hour like Mr. Hu Han-min to adhere to one fundamental principle and save the country at once in the only way in which it can be done, by dethroning the dynasty of deception, by putting an end to the intolerable despotism and untenable position as manifested in the doings of General Chiang Kai-shek.

Notwithstanding the efforts of the present Nanking Government to sap the power of the Republic by doing the biddings of the Japanese militarists in order to preserve its own miserable skin, Mr. Hu Han-min still has confidence in its energy to reassert the independence from the yoke of tyranny and misgovernment within and the aggression from without.

How does the Nanking Government intend to face the perils which are assailing the Chinese Republic in every quarter? It does not intend to do anything, but is doing everything it can to deceive and mislead public opinion, to avoid a political convulsion and to uphold the dictatorship for the false pretense of General Chiang Kai-shek—by force, bribery and cajolery.

The sovereign sentiment of China at this juncture is to reorganize the Central Government on a sounder basis, by grappling earnestly at once with the curse of corrupt militarism, the menace of Communism and shaking off the fear of Japan's aggression. The power of supreme control of the National Army should reside with the Central Government, as Mr.

THE PEAK TRAM EXTENSION.

(To the Editor, the "Sunday Herald.")

Sir.—Healthy and bona-fide criticism is always welcome, but it was hoped that Mr. Bourne, a man of accredited ability, in his letter of Sunday last would have confined his observations to the actual building of this line, instead, with one exception, of attempting to criticise the many pros and cons of the scheme, which have already been discussed in the Press, and the utility of the line when built. The Tramway Co. want no advice or help in this respect.

The cost of building is of paramount importance, and I was asked to submit a proposal that could be carried out at a total cost of not more than $250,000, and, unless unforeseen exigencies arise, there is no doubt that there will be a very safe margin. With all due respect to Mr. Bourne, it would be really very interesting to all concerned to know how he arrived at the stupendous figure of $500,000, and if, as a conferee remarked, he intended to use platinum rails?

Any estimate at the present stage is pure guess work, and before any approximate figure can be arrived at the following principal items of information are absolutely essential, viz.—

1. The extent of the widening of the existing line at, or above the Bowen Road bridge. A new bridge may be necessary.

2. The feasibility of using the existing terminus as a repair shed, workshops & siding, or must this be at the new terminus?

3. The extent of the encroachment on the end of the Volunteer Headquarters building. The end wall may have to be entirely rebuilt.

4. The accommodation required at the new terminus. This would perforce be a two storey building worthy of its site and its immediate surroundings, and would

Hu Han-min has insisted again and again. No military groups or leaders should interfere in any way. There should be a proper budgetary system adopted to account for every item of expenditure on the army, education and reconstruction of the country in general. As it is, almost 80 to 90 per cent of the country's revenue is diverted to unhealthy militarism throughout the country.

National salvation through unification and solidarity is devoutly to be wished by the whole of China, but it must be for the benefit of China and not for the selfish aggrandisement of General Chiang Kai-shek or for Japan.

in itself be the most expensive item. It could of course be taken up to any height if the Tramway Co. look forward to any revenue from this source.

5. The cost of acquiring the land. This would no doubt be reduced to a minimum in view of the fact that the extension when erected would be an advantage to the general public and the Military.

However, before taking any further action in the matter, it must be ascertained if the scheme is favourably entertained by the Tramway Co. If it is I shall be pleased to submit a practical estimate of the cost as previously stated, after obtaining the information mentioned above. If not, this is my last word unless invited, and I would point out to your many critics, anonymous or otherwise, that it is a very easy job to pull it to pieces, but it is a far different thing to improve on it. I am sure you cordially invite any suggested improvements. Thanking you for this insertion.

BRITAIN'S - BEST WOMAN TYPIST

A Right

ROYAL Victory

The judges in the "News Chronicle" National Typewriting Contest have examined the work of the 100 candidates who took part in the final on Saturday, March 24, and they have decided that Britain's Most Efficient Woman Typist is—Miss Kathleen Mary Harris, "Sunways" 11, Montague-avenue, Sandhurst, Surrey. Machine used ROYAL.

Employed by: Phoenix Assurance Co., Phoenix House, King William-street, London, E. C. 4.

Miss Harris wins 100 guineas and becomes the holder of the title of the "News Chronicle" Champion Typist, 1934.

RESULT of the "News Chronicle" Typing Competition 1st, 2nd and 3rd prizes-ALL WON ON ROYALS

Miss K. M. Harris (Miss E. O. Blissett) (Miss D. Anderson)

The sweeping victory achieved by the "Royal" in the "News Chronicle" Typing Competition comes as no surprise to those who know the "Royal." The best work, the quickest work, the neatest work, was done with the "Royal." This amazing triumph is striking proof—proof in practice—that the "Royal" is the easiest and simplest machine for the typist to use and, therefore, the most economical from the employers' point of view. The "Royal" won First, Second and Third Prizes on its merits in competition with every other make. Now that you have overwhelming proof of "Royal" superiority—install "Royal" Typewriters.

Machine used: UNDERWOOD. Employed by: The Expanded Metal Co., Ltd., Burwood House, Caxton-street, Westminster, S.W.1.

Miss E. H. Taylor 30, Winter Heylane, Horwich, near Bolton, Lancs.

Machine used: UNDERWOOD. Employed by: The L.M. and S. Railway, Mechanical Engineer's office Locomotive Works, Horwich, near Bolton, Lancs.

There were four tests in the Grand Final for which the candidates were allowed two hours.

The system of marking followed by the judges throughout the preliminary and final tests was drawn up by the Board of Examiners in consultation with the Board of Control. In this way absolute fairness in the award of points was assured.

The final test papers carried no mark of the candidates' identity other than a number known to the "News Chronicle".

MILK TRADE MARK INFRINGED

Three Local Stores Prosecuted.

DISPLAYED FOR SALE

Three local firms were summoned before Mr. E. W. Hamilton at the Central Magistracy yesterday morning, with being in possession of tins of condensed milk for sale, bearing trade marks closely resembling those of the General Milk Company, U.S.A.

The firms were the Yuen Cheong Firm, No. 374 Queen's Road Central, the Ho Sai Hing Firm, No. 132 Queen's Road East, and the Central Store, No. 64 Des Voeux Road Central.

Mr. W. K. Robinson pleaded not guilty on behalf of the Central Store, and the case was remanded until next Saturday.

A fine of $1 was imposed on the Ho Sai Hing Firm, who pleaded guilty and who tried to help the complainant firm to trace the origin of the milk. Mr. Hamilton, however, ordered the defendants to pay $50 costs.

Owing to the absence of the master of the Yuen Cheong Firm, the hearing of the summons against them was adjourned sine die.

Mr. Jackson Chan, salesman of Messrs. Connell Brothers, local agents for the General Milk Company, U.S.A., was the complainant. Mr. H. C. Chan prosecuted.

WORLD'S LARGEST CAKE.

Melbourne Confection Has 100 Sovereigns.

Weighing ten tons and containing 100 newly-minted sovereigns, the world's largest birthday cake will be a feature of the Melbourne Centenary Celebrations.

Victorian products will be used in the cake mixture, the principal ingredients being 4½ tons of fruit, ¼ tons of almonds, 1½ tons of butter, 1½ tons of flour and 30,000 eggs.

The cake will be cut into 250,000 pieces, each 1½ oz. in weight, which will be sold in sealed boxes at a nominal price and every buyer will have a chance to secure one of the 100 sovereigns. A special building 50 feet high and 300 feet in circumference, a reproduction of the cake, is being built to house the mammoth confection. Arrayed around the building will be 99 giant candles while the 100th candle, surmounting the whole display, will be lit at the opening ceremony. A dance palace on the first floor will be the scene of the £500 Centenary dancing competition.

SHIP'S OFFICER ASSAULTED

Shop Foki's Attack With Ruler.

SAILING DELAYED

Charged with assaulting Mr. Tipe, chief engineer on board the s.s. On Lee, last Wednesday, Kwok So, a shop foki, was brought before Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy yesterday morning.

The prosecuting officer stated that on Wednesday, at 6.30 p.m. accused boarded the ship to collect some money for his master. He was told that the boat was scheduled to sail at 7 p.m., and asked to return on the next trip. Accused refused to go and took a ruler from his pocket and struck Mr. Tipe on the head.

Mr. Tipe was removed to the Government Civil Hospital where his wound was attended to. The sailing was consequently delayed for an hour.

The case was remanded until Monday pending the arrival of the s.s. On Lee.

IMITATION OF TRADE MARK.

300 Tins Of Matches Confiscated.

SEIZURE ON SHIP

On the application of Mr. John Barrow, assistant superintendent of the Imports and Exports Department, 300 tins of matches, seized on board the s.s. Tai Poo Sek, on April 3, were ordered to be confiscated by Mr. E. W. Hamilton at the Central Magistracy yesterday morning.

Mr. Barrow said that the matches bore a trade mark which closely resembled the trade mark of the Cathay Match Company, Limited and was calculated to deceive.

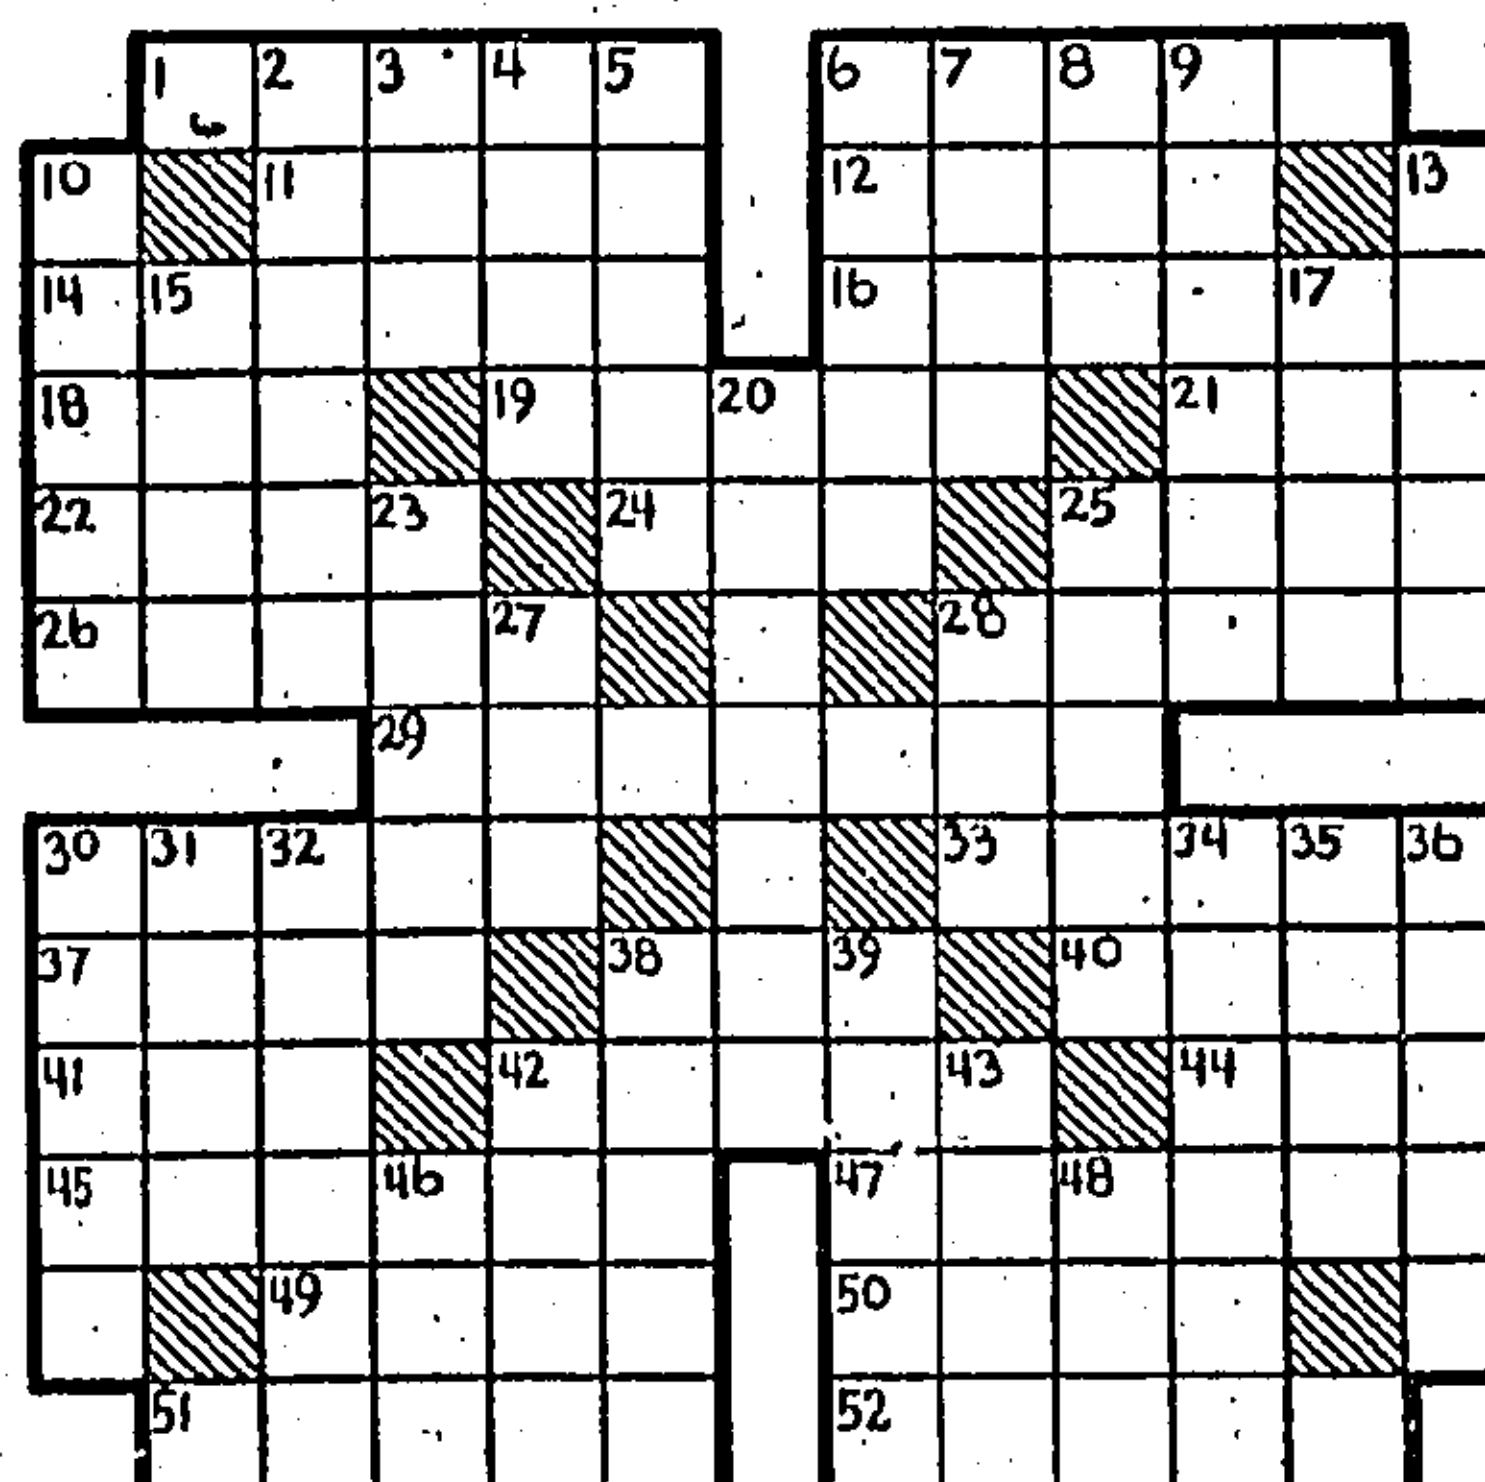

He added that the matches were originally imported into the Colony on the s.s. Bengal Maru, but they were transferred to the s.s. Tai Poo Sek the next day.

Cotton:—Higher prices are anticipated. There is no break in the heat in the Western belt.

Reuters—10.20 p.m.

Favourable factors:—Hopes that business improvement will restrain selling, the possibilities of an extra dividend for General Motors are still discussed. The belief persists that President Roosevelt will shortly make a re-assuring statement regarding business conditions.

Unfavourable factors:—The unsettled condition of leading commodities, the drop in car loadings which is not seasonal.

Reuter—11 p.m.

Inflation talk seems to be cooling off and the dollar is steadier. The market is quiet, but steady, with orders about evenly divided. Continued narrow and unimportant movements are expected.

Weather Condition Report—9.10 p.m.

Cotton:—In the Eastern Belt there are thunder showers. A forecast indicates no settled conditions. In the West Centre the weather is torrid, except in Arkansas, where there are slight rains and cooler weather. A forecast indicates torrid conditions with an increase in temperatures throughout the entire belt.

Grains:—In the spring belts the heat wave is intensified with temperatures over 100 degrees. In East Montana the heat wave is proceeding to the East, but it is cooler in West Montana with showery conditions which will possibly proceed to the East after the heat wave. In the South West and Mid-West the weather is torrid and is becoming more severe.

CHINESE MUSICAL ARTISTS.

Successful Concert At Chinese "Y."

A pleasing concert given by three talented young artists, Messrs. B. Ing, S. T. Ting and C. L. Tai, from the National Conservatory of Music, Shanghai, was rendered to an appreciative audience at the Chinese Y. M. C. A., Bridges Street, last evening.

The selections were wisely selected and of a varied kind, ranging from Schumann's "Die Belden Grenadier" to the deep and plaintive melodies of Beethoven and Massenet.

Mr. Tai, in interpreting the spiritual quality of that creative personality, Beethoven, deserved the palm for the success of the evening.

Eleven songs were sung by Mr. Ing, a former pupil of Theodore Harrison of the University of Chicago. His rich baritone voice brought much applause. Mr. Ing, a graduate of the University of Michigan, returned to China in 1930.

The stirring composition, "Yuk Lun Po," which describes Emperor Tu Pei Huang's losing battle with one of his generals, and consequently led to his suicide, composed by Wang Wei, the seventh century Chinese poet and musician, was given by Mr. Ting, on a Chinese string instrument.

The three musicians are leaving to-day for Shanghai, by the S.S. Sun Ning, having completed a successful tour of South China.

wind was rather strong, the campers still enjoyed themselves, sitting near the small Chinese stoves, playing bridge or chess.

"The hillside looked just like one big waterfall with all the water rushing down," said the Rev. Nash.

On August 1, they left the camp at 7 a.m. and returned to Hong Kong. It was too wet to return by the same track, so they had to walk to the river which passed the foot of Lok Fau and take a boat to Shek-

MARJORIE WHITE ENTERTAINS.

Cabaret Novelty At Hong Kong Hotel.

VIVACIOUS FILM STAR GRIPS AUDIENCE

The Hong Kong Hotel are to be congratulated on their innovation last night when Miss Marjorie White, well-known blonde Hollywood film star, performed at the Roof Garden Dinner Dance Cabaret.

Patrons of the Hotel were privileged to witness at close quarters this vivacious little star, and to witness in person some of the acts which made her name in such films as "Sunny Side Up," "Call it Luck" and "Woman Haters."

Introduced by Mr. Eddie Tierney, her husband, Miss White gave several bright and cheery songs, fresh from Hollywood, also some fascinating exhibitions of dancing.

Her appeal and personality gripped the crowded audience, and when she left the floor, she was brought back again and again by rounds of applause.

A feature of her entertainment was some clever back-chat and patter with her husband, who also is a member of the film profession.

The popularity of this little film star was fully evidenced by the fact that the spacious floor of the Roof Garden was crowded with tables, many patrons of the hotel finding it impossible to secure accommodation.

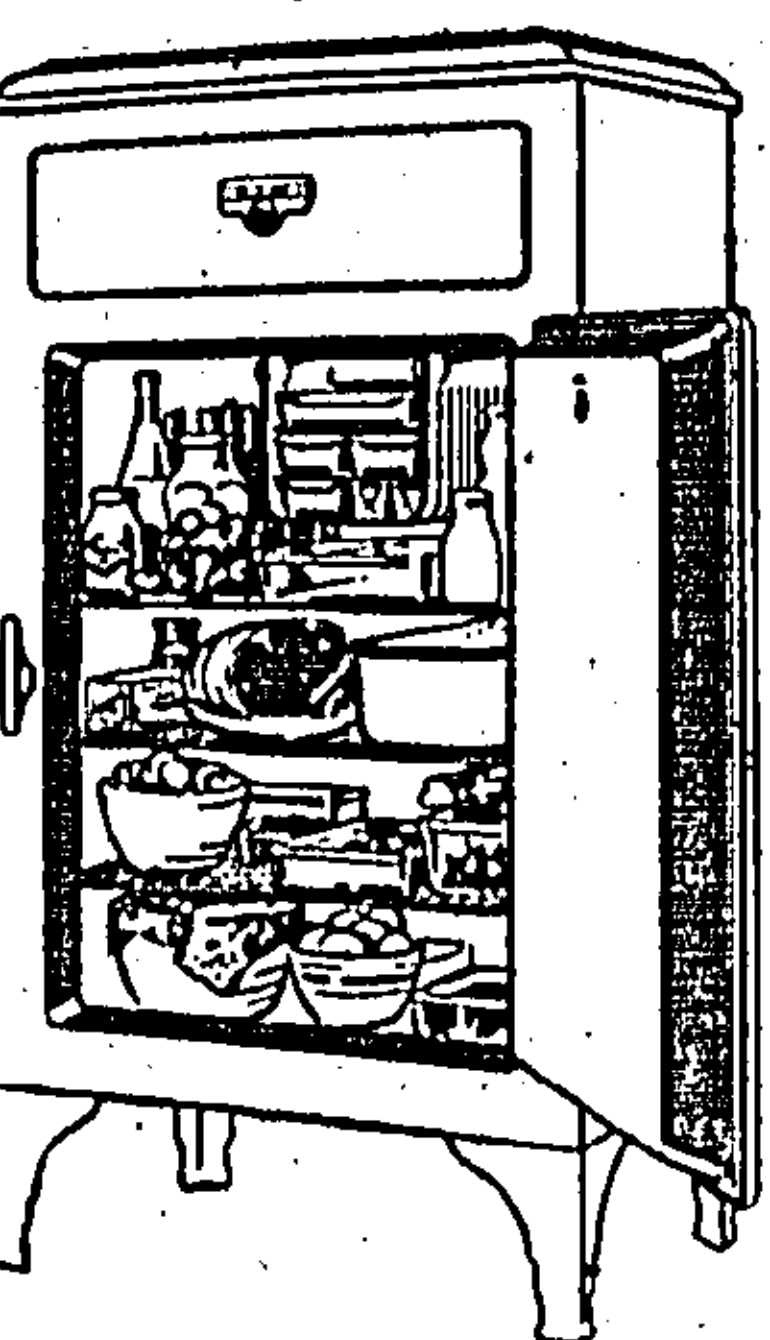

Miss White will be seen again in Hong Kong at the Queen's Theatre, in connection with the screening of the film "Call it Luck," in which she is featured.

lung where they caught the express to Kowloon, arriving at 7.30 p.m.

As a result of getting wet on his return journey Mr. Nash is now in bed suffering from a slight cold.

There is still a number of local people at the camp, amongst whom are Mr. and Mrs. D. Orr, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Price, Mrs. Lancaster and Billy, the Rev. and Mrs. Bennett, Miss Buckland, and Miss Silcame from somewhere in the South. It was certainly a tough break for a nice guy like him. But I guess that's New York. What's the matter, mister? Ain't you listening? You look sort of bleary-eyed."

Lem wanted to scream. He wanted to sink through the floor. There was a double pounding—one in his head and another in his heart. But as we have observed before he never could show his feelings about his boy in public.

"Where is he now?" he asked. "Down at the morgue," answered the young man as he turned to answer the phone.

Lem found himself out in the street breathing as though there was not enough air to go round. His boy shot! His boy dead! Odd things popped in to his head. The small family plot in the Willabro cemetery. Lucy was waiting there for him and John. He couldn't disappoint Lucy. Maybe she was waiting to press John to her again as she did when he wasn't too big for that sort of nonsense. He found himself back at the stable where he had left Michael a few hours before. "Mitch him up again," he told the listless attendant. "Okay," was the answer without any further comment.

As Lem drove out into the street he stopped just long enough to ask a cop, "Where's the morgue?" The cop looked curiously at the wobbly outfit and said, "The morgue? Why it's in the fourth telephone booth in the north-east corner of the Grand Central Depot. Ha! Ha!"

But somehow Lem found the morgue. He paid twenty-five dollars for a plain wooden box, placed it gently inside the wagon with the four drooping plumes and started to drive back to Willabro.

The trip took over a month this time because Michael was very tired and Lem had to stop a day here and there to beg or earn a little food.

When he finally drove through Willabro and pointed towards the cemetery with his precious burden, someone stopped and said, "Look, There's Lem Smiley back in town again. I knew they couldn't keep him out of business. He's too smart. He's got a customer."

Interesting

WHEN FROZEN AIR "BURNS" YOU.

"Is there a point where extreme heat and extreme cold are one?"

If by cold and heat a feeling is meant, yes. If you touch frozen air you are "burnt" as though you touched a red-hot iron.

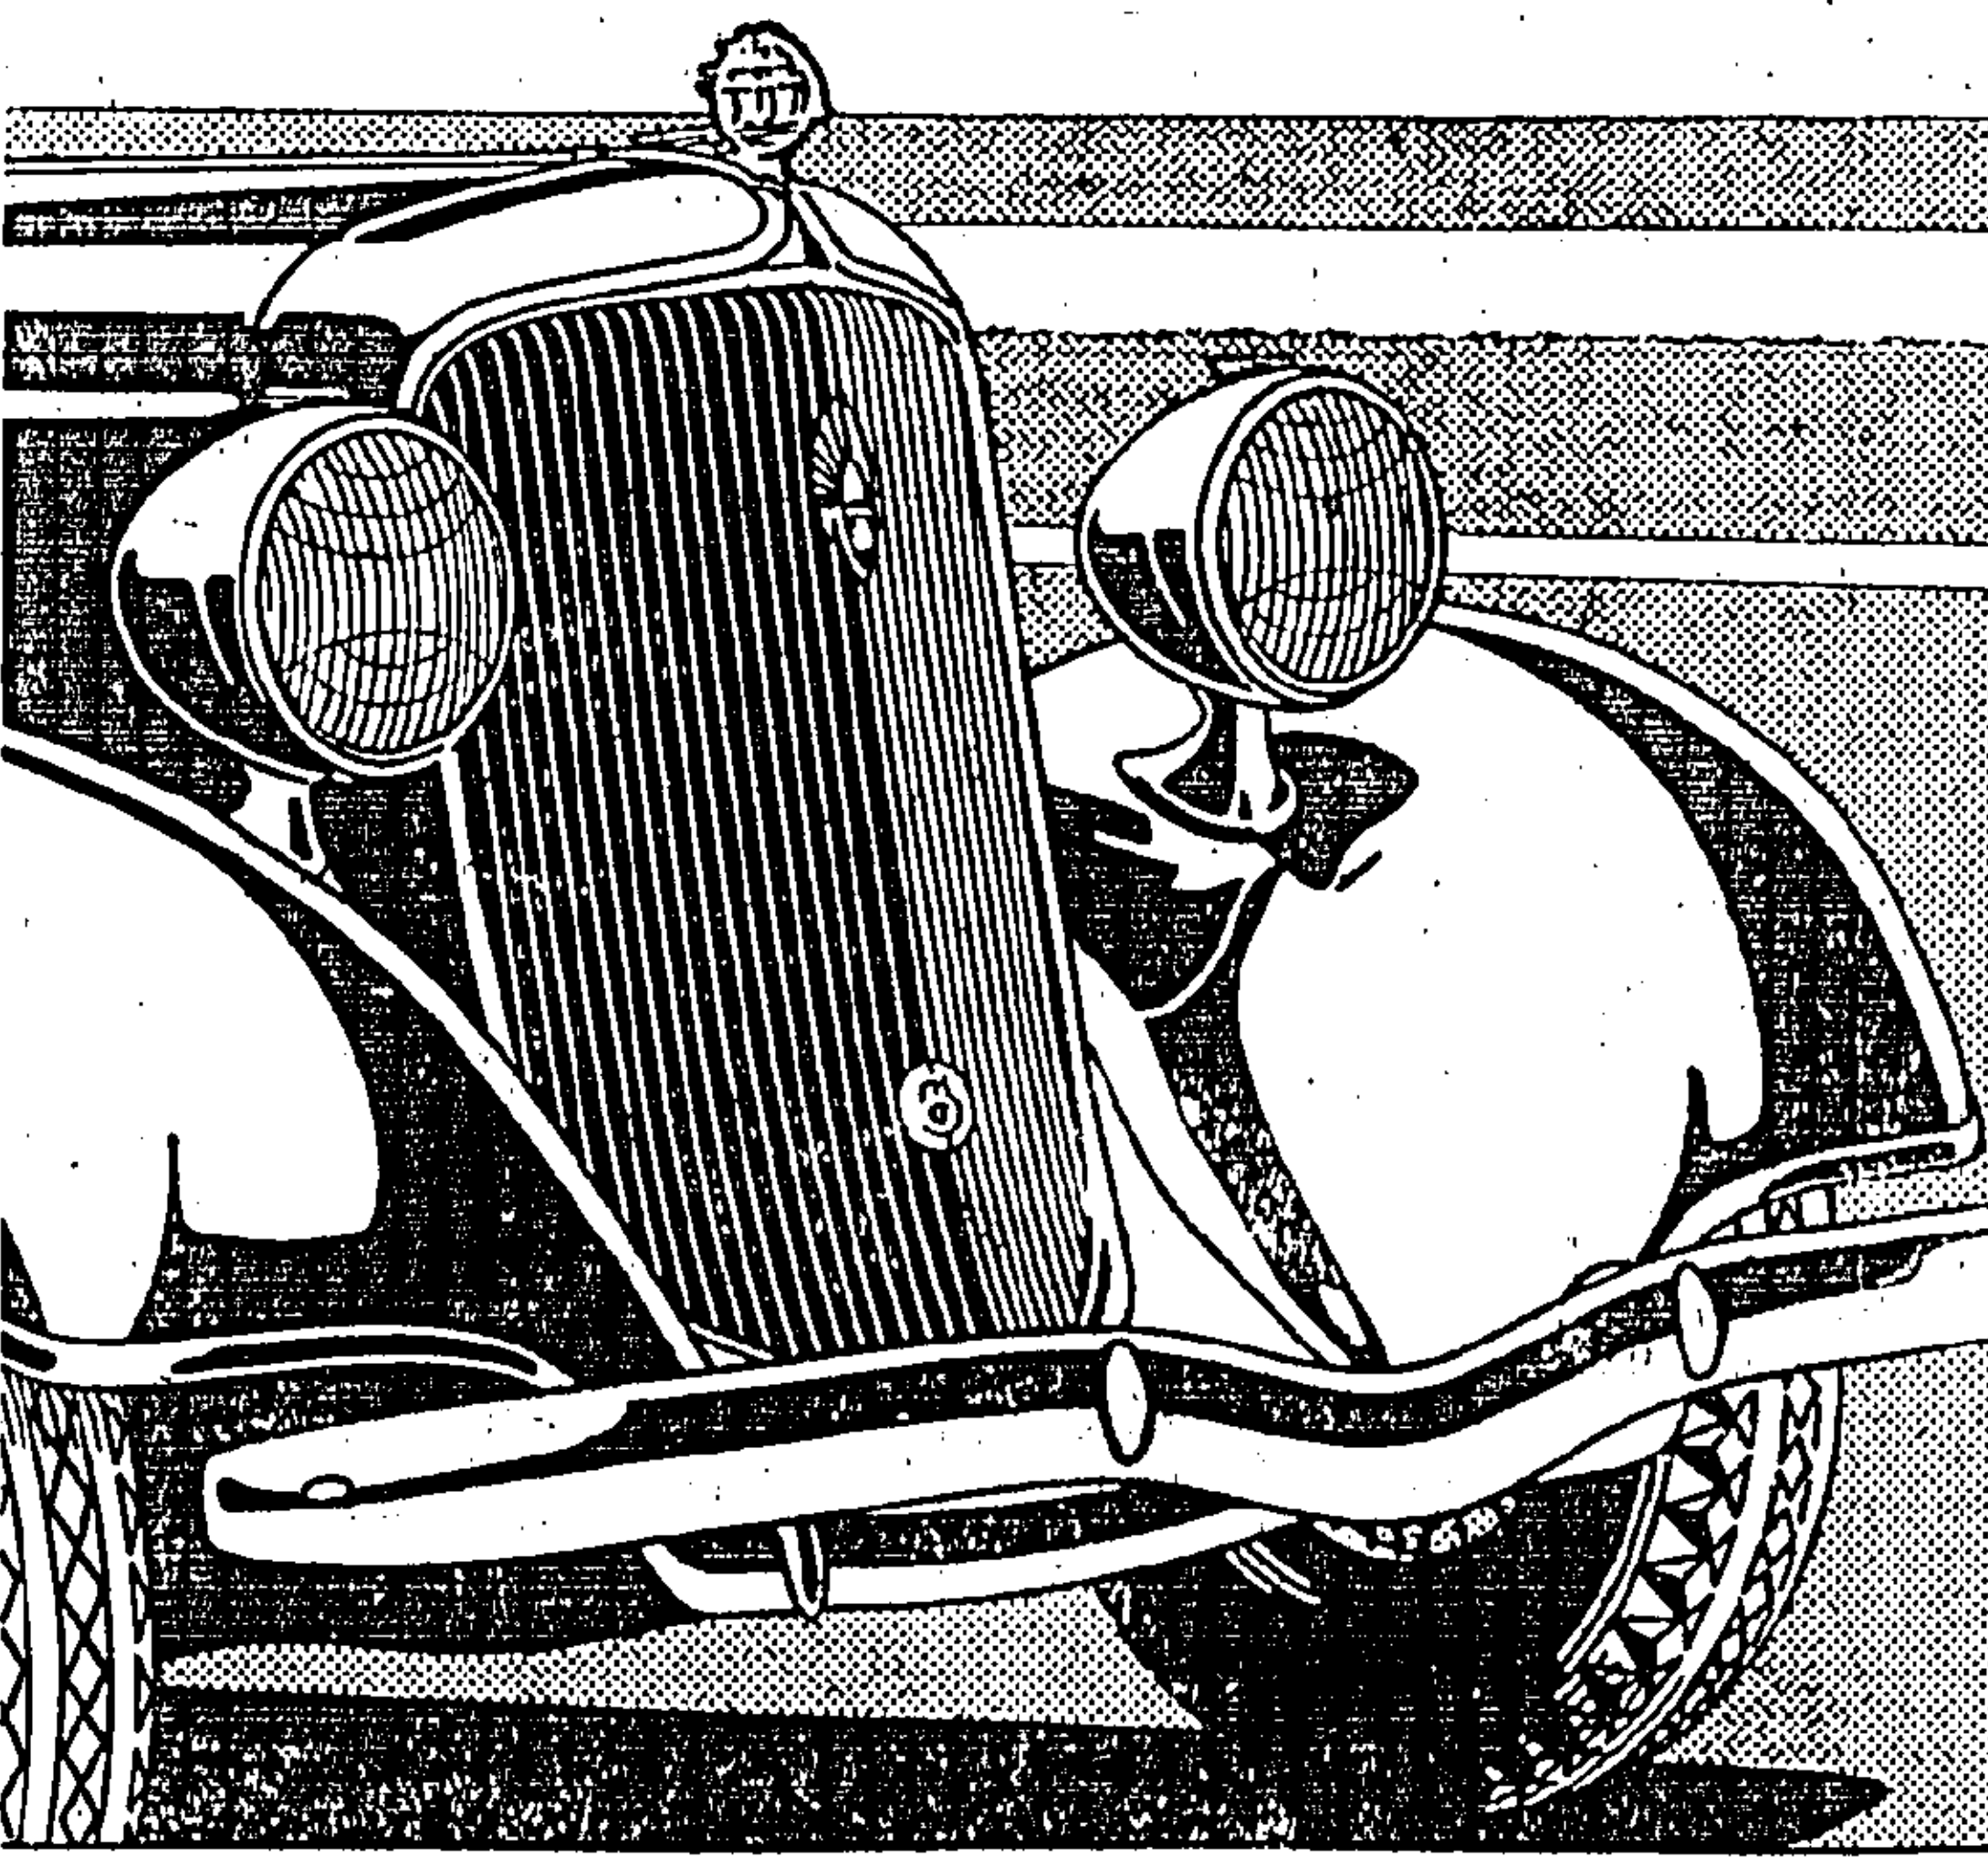

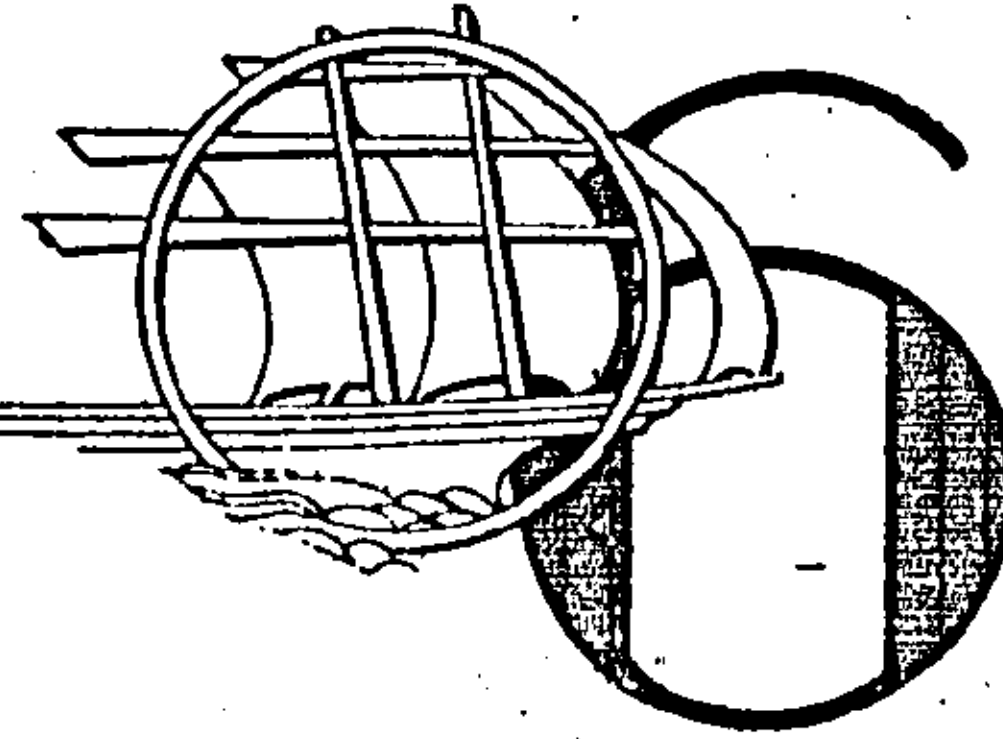

The heat rushing out of your body hurts you as much as the heat rushing in.

If by cold and heat it is meant the number of degrees a thermometer will register the answer is no.

Absolute zero is when all the movements of the molecules stop. Heat can increase until not only all the molecules are torn up but all the atoms, as in the centre of the sun, are themselves stripped of all their electrons and dash about at hundreds of miles per second.

The heat there is calculated to be some twenty million degrees Cent. and there are certainly still hotter stars—the upper limit is not known.

SPEED CHECK AT VILLENEUVE.

STRICTLY ENFORCED

Motorists who complain of congested roads may congratulate themselves that they do not have to pass through Villeneuve St. Georges, in France. The municipal council of this town, a straggling suburb of Paris on the road to Fontainebleau and the south, has for some time ordered a speed limit of 12 kilometres (7½ miles) per hour throughout its territory.

This in itself is not remarkable, for similar injunctions, studiously ignored, are a common feature of French village streets. The extraordinary point about the speed restriction at Villeneuve is that, at holiday time, at any rate, it is strictly enforced.

In the evening, when holiday-makers begin to return to Paris, the scene on the main road would astonish a Londoner. For several miles in the neighbourhood of Villeneuve a double line of cars and buses completely blocks one side of the highway. The other half is deserted, for outgoing traffic from Paris is naturally slight, and those homeward-bound are not permitted to break away from the ranks. At least two hours are often required to cover the last 15 miles of this road to Paris.

FARMER'S PRAISE FOR FORD.

But Wants To Drive It Too Much.

When the United States Government decided to bring to Washington a representative of the South and present to him Cheque No. 1 in the programme of compensation, for plowed-up cotton, the choice fell on Mr. W. E. Morris, of Neches County, Texas. To the national capital went the fortunate farmer, transported thither by aeroplane, and after he had met President Roosevelt and received his cheque, he enjoyed the added thrill of talking over "one of the nation's radio networks."

Mr. Morris is an enthusiastic Ford V-8 owner, being a customer of Heyser-Edwards Company, of Corpus Christi. In a letter to the dealer, he writes:

"I have no driven the 1933 Ford V-8 coup purchased from you October 31 1933 approximately 8,000 miles. The car is all that I could expect of it, and more. My only complaint is that it runs too good and I want to drive it too much. Not only do I want to, but I do."

RAIN

Dark clouds
Like gray ghosts
Veering across the leaden sky;
Leaves,
Lifting their tawny heads to cry
Joyfully to the capricious wind
Rushing about to find
New cars to tell your coming.

Then,
Your cool breath,
Your damp kiss, on my hair, my eyes.

You are magic!

Look,

How the hard streets change
At your touch into strange
Shining jewels;

How little pools form
In your wake;

And how the fallen leaves
Lie in grand submission
Fainting with your weight.

Look,

How Earth takes you to her breast,
Hungry, greedily, as if she had not guessed

One-half your sweetness.

Even the dusty gutters sing you a song

And the old drain mutters to hear
Your serene patter.

You are no dismal thing
As men have called you, for you bring

Life back into the drooping grasses;
You kiss the lovely masses
Of sleeping flowers into bloom
again;

And your rhythmical drip
On the roofs of the world
Is music, Rain.

SYLVIA MEECH.

PUZZLING THE DECLARER.

(By LADY RHODES)

BELOW is a hand which occurred in a game recently, where the declarer got into difficulties at the first trick.

South (the dealer held):

S.—A Q J 8 7 C.—Q J 6 4

North's hand was:

S.—K J 8 H.—7 5

D.—4 3 C.—K 10 9 7 3 2

The bidding went:

S. 1 Diamond

N. 2 Clubs

S. 3 Hearts

N. 3 No Trumps

S. 6 Clubs

East and West did not bid.

This was good bidding. South, with such excellent support for North's club take-out, was justified in giving a forcing rebid in hearts. Over North's negative response of 3 No Trumps the bidding of 6 clubs is correct. Five clubs might have been left, and 7 clubs would have been too big a risk.

4-5 No Trump Convention

Had North and South been using the 4-5 No Trump convention, the result would have been the same, but the bidding would have been slightly different:—

S. 1 Diamond.

N. 2 Clubs.

S. 3 Hearts.

N. 3 No Trumps.

S. 4 No Trumps.

N. 5 Clubs.

S. 6 Clubs.

South, in bidding 4 No Trumps, would have nothing to fear from North's "sign-off" of five, as from the start she would have intended to go at least as far as the little slam.

Now for the play of the hand. East's opening lead was the nine of diamonds. The declarer, after a long hesitation put on dummy's ace and so lost two tricks—the ace of trumps and the king of diamonds.

Before deciding what to play from dummy on the first trick, she should have taken stock of the two hands and seen that unless East had held the king of diamonds it was impossible for her to get the contract, whereas though it was improbable that East had led away from her king, it was not impossible.

The opponents' hands were:—

East West

S.—Q 10 7 6 5 S.—A 9 4 3 2

H.—10 3 H.—Q J 6 4 2

D.—K 9 6 5 D.—10 2

C.—A 5 C.—8

East's opening lead of the nine of diamonds was ingenious, and desperate situations, are often effective against any but the very strongest players. East did not care how much she took her partner in as long as she could deceive the declarer. North, by playing the ace, showed that she did not realise one of the most important principles in the play of the hand. The principle is this:—When a contract can only be made if a certain card or cards lie in a favourable position, the declarer should plan her play on the assumption that they are so placed, however improbable that may seem. There is generally nothing to lose by playing in this way. Of course, if you are doubled vulnerable you must use your discretion in cases where the possible extra penalty, in the event of your optimistic view not being correct, would entail a really heavy loss.

INFECTION FROM BALI KRIS

Gas-Producing Germ On Blade.

SICKNESS FROM SOUVENIR

Passaic, New Jersey. A mysterious infection caused by an unusual gas-producing germ brought from the island of Bali on the blade of a souvenir kris, almost took the life of 14 year-old Bill Benson Robinson, who is now recovering after an operation.

The victim is the son of Mrs. Henry Du-Bois and the grandson of Mr. William S. Benson, a former executive of the Tide-water Oil Company. Mr. Benson recently returned from a world cruise, which included a stop at Bali.

At Bali, Mr. Benson visited, with fellow-tourists, a temple at Den Pasar. They watched a group of bronze-skinned natives perform a ritual dance before the edifice and, at the close of the ceremony, bought from them some trinkets as souvenirs.

Remembering his grandson, Mr. Benson sought something suitable for him. He decided upon a kris with a wavy-edged blade, and an engraved handle, about 18 inches long.

Delighted with the gift, the boy indulged in some imaginary stabbing movements and then, in his over-exuberance, threw the weapon on a bed and leaped on the bed after it. The tip of the kris pierced his leg which, almost at once began to swell and it was obvious that some unusually rapid infection had set in.

He was rushed to hospital and an operation was performed by Dr. Robert N. MacGuffie, who was wounded several times by shrapnel in France. Dr. MacGuffie refused to comment on the complaint.

Pathologists who examined the kris found a germ on its tip, but so far have not succeeded in identifying it.—Reuter.

PLAGUE PREVENTION IN CANTON

Free Inoculation During Health Drive.

40-DAYS' CAMPAIGN

Canton, Yesterday.
To prevent an epidemic of plague from breaking out during the hot weather, the Municipal Bureau of Public Health has been conducting a health drive since the beginning of July. Besides the hospitals under the control of the Bureau, all private hospitals and doctors were requested to dispense medical treatment and inoculation for 40 days.

To give accommodation to those people living in the outskirts where there are no hospitals, the Bureau, in addition, ordered the Municipal Hospital yesterday to use ambulances for dispensing inoculation. It is learned that a number of ambulance carts have been prepared by the Municipal Hospital, which will be sent to the outskirts of this city every day for the purpose.—

New York, Yesterday.
French traders have sold
American dollars heavily for fear of inflation. It is rumoured in both the United States and abroad that an increase in the American gold price is imminent.

The pound yesterday rose in terms of the dollar and declined in terms of the franc, indicating that the London gold price will probably advance sharply to-day.

Company.

Relief For Salt Traders

Canton, Yesterday.
Due to the keen competition among Kiangsu salt traders, and the carrying out of the bandit suppression campaign, the Kwangtung
salt market in Hunan and Kwangsi has been very dull during the past two years. For the relief of salt traders, the Provincial authorities have taken measures from time to time.

OPTIMISTIC TREND ON WALL STREET.

Expected Bullish Speech
By Roosevelt.

SPECIAL TO SUNDAY HERALD.
New York, Yesterday.
Wall Street is interpreting the business outlook more optimistically.

Favourable factors are that President Roosevelt is expected to make a bullish address within a week, renewed buying of railroad shares, and the report that 600 brokers are meeting on Monday to discuss plans to stimulate trading.

An unfavourable factor is grain crops, which indicate the smallest figure per capita in history. — United Press, per S. E.
Levy and Company.

MORE OPTIMISM ON WALL STREET.

Increasing Agitation
For Inflation.

New York, Yesterday.
Brokers here are more optimistic, partially due to the increasing agitation for inflation.

Favourable market factors are the expected increase in the steel trade is showing gains.
An unfavourable factor is President Roosevelt's speech pledging that the Government will foster power for developments likely to depress utilities. — United Press
per S. E. Levy and Company.

GENERAL PAI STAYING

PROLONGED
VISIT TO SOLVE
MANY PROBLEMS

NOT BECAUSE OF AILMENTS.

CO-OPERATION URGED

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday.
General Pai Hsueh-Hsi, Second-
in-Command of the Kwangsi Fourth Group Army, and outstanding military strategist in China, has postponed his departure for Nanning, as his presence here is required in connection with the solution of military and political problems which are constantly arising.

Press reports state persistently that the Kwangsi general is undergoing medical treatment for arm, eye, and throat ailment, but the statements are incorrect. The general is in the best of health.

Besides, General Pai, General Li Chung-jen, Commander-in-Chief of the Fourth Group Army, is also in Canton, both leaders being members of the Kuomintang Southwest Executive Committee. Their presence here is due to the desire of the Canton military authorities to cement cordial relations with Kwangsi.

Kwangtung has the money,
and Kwangsi raises good fighting soldiers.
In 1926, Generals Li Chung-jen and Pai Hsueh-hsi commanded three Kwangsi divisions and captured
Chekiang and certain parts of Kiangsu. Then General Pai became Chief-of-Staff. — General Chiang Kai-shek and later was appointed garrison commandant of the Shanghai area.

The Kwangsi generals then extended their influence to Hupoh, Hunan, Kwangtung and some parts of Hopei (Chihli). Finally General Chiang Kai-shek stepped in to curb the power of the Kwangsi leaders, who subsequently retired to their native province.

TRADE STIMULUS REQUIRED.

Momentum Needed For Present Recovery.

SPECIAL TO SUNDAY HERALD.
(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received August 4, 10.05 a.m.)

New York, Yesterday.
Messrs. Dun and Bradstreet in their weekly report, note more evidence of sustained business improvement than last month.
They point out that there are indications that the fall of trade might not decline much below last year, although it will be on a more orderly basis.

"While business is again advancing, it cannot be denied that some strong stimulus is needed to enable it to gather momentum," they add. — United Press,
per S. E. Levy and Company.

HIGHEST EMPLOYMENT LIST IN STEEL INDUSTRY FOR 4 YEARS

New York, Yesterday. — The American Steel Institute reports that employment in the steel industry in June was 455,966, the highest for four years, and compared with 338,146 last June. — United Press, per S. E.
Levy and Company.

A Tea Dance will be held at the
